Will Rogers Has Proof Hopi Snake Dance Is Sacred

(Special To The News)

GRAND CANYON, Ariz., Aug. 25.—Haven't seen a newspaper in three days, and after seeing one I had not missed a thing.

To prove that the snake dance is a sacred thing, before the last Indian had finished a two-step with a six-foot rattler in his mouth, why, drops of rain began to fall.

The only way an Indian spectator could see the dance would have been to climb up on some funny looking white woman's shoulder, for there sure was queer types here.

If you never take but one airplane trip in your life, make it the one where you fly over the Grand Canyon.

Yours,

WILL.

PA NEWC OBSERVES

Styles are changing again. Here we are still wearing straw hats, sweating under the collar to the degree of discomfiture, talking about the warm weather as did our forefathers when they couldn't think of anything polite or appropriate to say, sleeping on top of the covers at night and the red flannels still resting unpurturbed in the family chest and the stores, Pa Newc observes, start their display of fur coats.

All of the store windows are displaying their fall wear as well as some things originally used in the dead of winter such as the fur coats. It's a good thing heavier or lighter shoes are not essential as the seasons change for if they did a fellow wouldn't get a a pair broken in and the blisters off his feet until he would have to break in a new pair.

Pa Newc observes that the new Social Service Exchange which is the resultant efforts put forth by the Community Chest is getting along famously and that their aims and efforts have been rewarded. Pa Newc was told that many families will attempt to get a pair of shoes or a sack of flour one place and will then go around and get the same thing from the next organization. It may be good business but charity doesn't work that way. Some families were begging aid from organizations that another society are supplying adequate foodstuffs to.

The tower of the First United Presbyterian church stands like a monument amidst the heap of ruins on Jefferson street. A stranger passing through at night and not observing the heaps of debris at the foot would think it a memorial as it stands there proud and majestic and alone.

Next Saturday Pa Newc observes is bound to be hectic and one that will be remembered for some time. When a bunch of doughboys get together there's bound to be mirth and plenty of it. The city is planning a rousing welcome for them.

Pa Newc observed the campus up at Westminster college last night. It is becoming more beautiful every day and New Castle has a just right to be proud of her college and should give it her support. The campus is now in one long stretch from the main building to the football field as the houses have been moved to another section off the campus.

New Castle sleuths are hot on the trail of those committing the petty thefts in the city recently. Already some have been apprehended and the blue force are chasing after others. Despite the fact that some people criticize, some always do, the New Castle police force is mighty efficient.

Speaking of robberies no bandits cut in the Mt. Jackson district have been caught yet. There have been so many robberies out there lately that it isn't even news. If they go one night without one, that is news.

For almost a full year there has been a vast hole in Falls street, immediately in front of The Castleton. Many guests have muttered inaudible somethings as their cars would bump across it. The management is almost frantic. It must be fixed, and yet no action has been taken by the city street department. Pa Newc wonders why.

Pa Newc saw private automobiles parked in the former central fire department on East street. Just been wondering whether or not the city was starting a private undertaking of that character.

Leaders Claim Nearly Enough Electoral Votes

Say That 235 Are "In The Bag", With Only 31 More Needed To Insure Victory

COUNTING UPON WEST AS SOLID

Confident That He Has Won Farm Belt, Candidate Prepares To Get Some Rest

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON,
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Aug. 25—While his lieutenants boasted that his western trip had carried him to within 31 electoral votes of election as president, Herbert Hoover today picked up the reins of his party to run his own campaign in the east.

His only plans for the week-end was to get "eighteen hours sleep," to catch up on some of the rest lost on his 3,500 mile trip from California to Washington. On Monday he will open his presidential campaign office in a fashionable residence near his own home in Northwest Washington.

May Be Disputed

The Hoover claims for electoral votes undoubtedly will be disputed heatedly by Democratic leaders. His advisers nevertheless were confident, and so too was Hoover that he will carry the west in almost landslide

Father Hears Daughter Scream For Help And Fires With Shotgun At Couple

(International News Service)

BATH, N. Y., Aug. 25.—Mrs. Louis McGowan, 24 was shot and instantly killed today and her husband 26 suffered probable fatal wounds as a result of a family quarrel at Tibbons Landing, 10 miles north east of Hammondsport. William Dart, 50, father of the woman, is held by police charged with the shooting. Dart declared that he fired one shot from a shotgun at McGowan when his daughter called for help. The charge of bullets from the shotgun almost decapitated the woman. McGowan suffered wounds in head and neck.

Legion Elects Chas. E. Gebert As Commander

(BULLETIN)
(International News Service)

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Aug. 25.—The Pennsylvania Department of the American Legion at its tenth annual convention here this afternoon elected Charles A. Gebert, of Tamaqua, as State Commander for the ensuing year.

It required two ballots to name a commander as none of the three candidates received a majority of the total vote on the first ballot, which showed 327 votes for William McNaughter, of Pittsburgh, 119 for Ray E. Taylor of Harrisburg and 275 for Gebert.

State Chairman Urges Voters To Register

FOGELSVILLE, Pa., Aug. 25.—With Governor John S. Fisher as keynote speaker, the Republicans of Lehigh county, at their annual meeting in Community park here, opened the presidential campaign in Pennsylvania. It was the biggest rally in the history of the county, arranged and presided over by Horace W. Schantz, president pro tem of the state senate, who is now serving his ninth term as county chairman.

The various speakers and celebrities attending the meeting assembled in Allentown and then motored the eight miles to the park here where a chicken and waffle dinner was first on the official program.

A resolution was introduced and passed endorsing the Kansas City platform and the national and state nominees.

The list of speakers in addition to the governor included the outstanding leaders of the state who predicted victory for the Republican candidates and called upon all to enroll and vote in the November primary.

PLANE TOO HEAVY WITH GASOLINE

Serious Accident To Plane Averted In Take-Off; Gas Tank Springs Leak

(International News Service)

PARIS, Aug. 25.—Capt. Louis Goudouret, French ace, who hopped off with two companions at 6:07 o'clock this morning for a trans-Atlantic flight to New York, returned to Le Bourget field a short time later, landing safely.

Goudouret made an unsatisfactory take off, running the entire length of the field before the plane rose into the air. The machine ran along the ground for about a mile and a quarter before it began to ascend. The flyers were unable to get into the air until they had emptied many gallons of their fuel. When the machine did leave the ground it barely cleared the trees on the edge of the field.

Tires Burst.

Goudouret made a turn and then brought the plane back to the field. It landed so heavily that both tires upon the landing wheels burst.

Pilot Goudouret was in an angry mood when he climbed from the cockpit.

"The gasoline tank leaked like a sieve," he exclaimed. "We got off the ground with the greatest difficulty, missing the roof of the hangars by only a few feet. It was then that we discovered the leak.

Physician Slain In Chicago Resisting Attempt At Robbery

Doctor Is Killed And Woman Companion Wounded By Same Bullet In Tragic Shooting

(International News Service)

CHICAGO, Aug. 25.—Dr. Julian M. Sinke, 41, married and the father of two children, was shot and fatally wounded early today as he sat in his automobile with Miss Rose Steele, 28, a patient of the physician. Dr. Sinke died on the way to a hospital.

The same bullet passed through the body of Dr. Sinkle and wounded Miss Steele. She is in a serious condition and may not live.

An 18-year-old immigrant boy, so anaemic and weak he had to use both hands to pull the trigger, did the shooting. He fired when the doctor resisted his attempts at robbery.

Irvine Accepts Position At West Chester

Leaving Here Because Of Opportunity For Further Education In East

SALARY NOT CAUSE OF RESIGNATION

"While the position at West Chester State Teachers' college has a promising future it ppeals to me now because it will, on account of its location, afford me an excellent opportunity to add to my own education at the University of Pennsylvania," was the reason given at noon today by La Verne Irvine for his resignation from director of music in the New Castle school system.

"As a matter of fact, it is more education and not more salary which appeals to me right now," continued Mr. Irvine. "When I submitted my resignation, I stated that there is no city in the entire country to which I am more attached and in which I would rather live and serve. I wish to repeat it now. I never expect to have a finer body of fellow teachers; I shall never ask for better support and cooperation than that which the local authorities and citizens have

Crowd Attends Homecoming Day At Westfield

Church Facilities Taxed To Accommodate Members And Friends Present

DINNER AT NOON A SUMPTUOUS ONE

Greetings From Other Churches And Splendid Addresses Mark Program

Friday's drizzling rain failed to dampen the spirits of the sons and daughters of the Westfield Presbyterian church, near Mt. Jackson, whose 125th anniversary is being observed this week, and as a result more than 400 men, women and children were in the audience at yesterday's homecoming program, just one of the features of the anniversary week's schedule.

Oldsters and Youngster.

Old-timers of the congregation mingled with the new blood of the historic church, renewing old acquaintances and gaining new ones. Visitors come from far and near to attend the celebration which the church officials had so carefully planned, in order to mark appropriately the 125th year of the church's existence.

Cars began streaming into the Westfield district early in the morning and continued coming until late in the afternoon. Some were unable to be present at the dinner at noon, which was held in the Westfield Grange hall, just across the road from the church. However, many found it convenient to attend the afternoon's program, and did so.

Throughout the forenoon the sons of the church did their share of the work of cleaning up the surroundings and doing odd jobs necessary. Then, too, the Westfield throng commenced to arrive, some in twos, some in fours, eights and tens. They came to spend the day shaking hands and greeting old friends, meeting some whom they had not seen for many years.

What a Dinner

Shortly after noon the call to dinner was given. The throng moved to-

Coolidge And His Companions Catch Eighty-Four Trout

(International News Service)

LEWIS, Wis., Aug. 25.—It's a good thing President Colidge has done his last 24 hours of fishing on a private estate.

Had it been elsewhere, by now he or some of his immediate party would have run afoul of the state conservation law.

As the guest of Charles E. Lewis, Minneapolis broker, at Seven Pines here, the President, his host, Col. Osmun Latrobe, the military aid, Col. James F. Coupal, the presidential physician and Col. E. W. Starling assitant chief of the secret service detail, went fishing yesterday afternoon for trout on the privately stocked Seven Pines creek. They trolled and cast until well into the evening.

"Eighty-four trout for the party" was the official count announced this morning.

Twenty-five is the total number any individual can catch on an open stream under state law. The President and his party however were fishing in a creek that is screened at both extremities of the Lewis state and privately stocked each year.

The law doesn't appy.

Mayor Walker And Interborough Officials Clash As Investigation Starts

(BULLETIN)
(International News Service)

NEW YORK, Aug. 25.—Fourteen persons were killed and 95 injured, some probably mortally, in New York's worst underground disaster, an accurate check of hospitals and morgues revealed today, as the subway trains again started roaring through their tunnels on schedule and at full speed.

Twelve of the dead have been identified but the bodies of two women, mangled almost beyond recognition as human beings, still remained in the Bellevue morgue.

NEW YORK, Aug. 25.—Sixteen persons were killed and nearly 100 injured, 47 seriously, in the disastrous subway wreck at Times Square late yesterday, a check-up of hospitals and the morgue revealed today. In the transit commission's original report 17 were reported dead. It was feared that the death list would be increased during the day.

Men Work All Night

Normal service on the west side line was restored this morning after more than 500 men, working all night, removed the debris of Manhattan's most frightful subway wreck from the tunnel. The debris loaded on flatcars included a few severed fingers, personal effects of the victims and chunks of the heavy concrete supporting wall, which was broken in two at 5:09 o'clock when struck by the ninth car of a southbound 10-car Brooklyn express.

W. E. Baldwin, switchman in the Times Square station, was arrested early today on a charge of homicide.

SOME CLOSEUPS OF WESTFIELD'S HOMECOMING

By BRUCE EWING

Olden days at the Westfield church, located out past Mt. Jackson, were recalled Friday by the older members of that progressive congregation. Times back in the civil war period, and even farther back than that, were subjects of conversation on almost every lip. They talked of Westfield—yesterday, today and tomorrow. Amidst this reverberation of history—history which has played such an important part in the development of Lawrence county—wandered a reporter of The News, gathering what interesing information he could.

Members, friends and far-off strangers were there to participate in the home-coming exercises, one of the features of the congregation's 125th anniversary of its founding. They spent an enjoyable day, meeting old acquaintances in the morning, taking part in the great dinner at noon and listening to interesting addresses throughout the afternoon.

Ancestors of three of the church's early ministers were present. They were recognized in the afternoon program. Harvey McGoun of this city, with his two sons, Sam H. McGoun and Ralph McGoun, also of New Castle, was in attendance. Mr. McGoun is the great-grandson of the Rev. Nicholas Pittinger, the congregation's first pastor. He served as pastor of the church until September 13, 1809, at which time his pastoral relationship was dissolved owing to the fact that he was an ardent advocate of the cause of temperance. That was in 1809 understand and—oh nothing! Times have changed you know! Nevertheless in taking the stand he did on the question, Rev. Pittinger, who at that time served both the Poland Presbyterian church and the Westfield church for the exact sum of $400 a year, made himself unpopular with his people and his connection with the country church was soon severed. Yesterday, the same congregation—with a widely different view on the subject — honored their founder's memory and paid respect to his descendants.

And there were other kin of the first pastor present, too. Smith McGoun and his sister, Miss Simatha McGoun of Beaver Falls and Mrs. Ella Eisenberg of Sharon, all descendants of that great man of God were in the audience. They told interesting accounts of the church's historical side.

With such a firm foundation and with such a steady progress featuring the first 125 years of its existence, the Westfield congregation, still made up of several members of the Westfield of yesterday, is expected to reach even greater goals than have already been accomplished. Rev. Ross M. Haverfield, the present pastor, is a most capable leader. Both Mr. Haverfield and his wife have a great love in their hearts for the rural church, and are exceedingly happy today in their present charge. The universal wish is: "Westfield, God Speed to You!"

There were other things besides speeches at Westfield yesterday—and we're thinking of one thing especially. Perhaps it might have been the reason for the crowd! We take it though, or we expect those persons who have been at the Westfield grange before that they already know the secret. It's probably not a secret either when we come to think seriously, for everyone has heard of those appetizing dinners they serve out there. Gracious, it even bothers a person to think about them—in the inner regions we mean. So listen readers, if the rest of this article doesn't read well, it's because we're thinking of something else for the simple reason we were at that picnic dinner at Westfield Friday. It was certainly grand!

Previous to the meal, the chief cake cutters gathered before their victims and made ready to cut them in pieces of fours, sixes and possibly eights. But the slices we saw at the table would not give evidence of the latter, for the slices—hum, nuf ced! But what we intended to say was this. The cakes were all lined on tables and we were invited in to take a peek. Say what a peek that was! Almost 70 cakes, including those deviled and those angeled, were already for the knife. And to tell the truth we waited almost 15 minutes longer for our dinner. Talk of temptation!

The women of the Westfield church who helped to prepare the outlay yesterday deserve the credit for the dinner. Perhaps some men were included too! No matter who it was, or how many helped, it would be utterly impossible for us to grasp the magnificence of the work, and the planning too. Yesterday's was a record breaker, we believe. There have been larger such dinners, but very few as delicious as Friday's.

People came from all localities yesterday. Many cars carried Ohio tags and several came from Pittsburgh.

Officials Will Question Father Of Slain Doctor

County Detective Says That Gun Carried By Elder Dapper Recently Fired

REQUEST FATHER TO WRITE NEW REPORT

Baffling Murder Mystery Is Causing Quite Some Sensation In Allegheny County

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 25.—The revolver which Henry A. Dapper, father of Dr. Harry R. Dapper, youthful Carrick physician, carried with him when he accompanied his son and a mysterious stranger on the "mercy call" during which the young doctor was murdered last Monday, has been fired recently, County Detective James Reddington declared today.

The new development in Allegheny county's most baffling murder mystery followed closely upon a request by county detertives that the elder Dapper appear today to make a formal written statement about the case. The father told police that a stranger who called for Dr. Dapper rode with them to a scheduled spot near Bettis field, shot the doctor to death, and then clubbed the elder man unconscious with a blackjack and escaped in Dr. Dapper's car.

Reddington said the detectives will question Dapper closely concerning several points in his early story, and in an effort to learn if the father can shed any further light on the murder.

Suspect Released.

WASHINGTON, Pa., Aug. 25.—Having proved to state police that he had no connection with the murder of Dr. Harry R. Dapper, young physician of Carrick, Pittsburgh suburb, M P. Walker, 37, was free today. The state troopers took Walker into custody at a rooming house here yesterday and demanded an explanation of his whereabouts.

Walker came here Tuesday, the day after the Dapper murder, from Stanton, N. D. On Monday, the day of the murder, Walker was in Chicago.

Walker, state police said they learned, came here to seek a position as school teacher. He had once taught in Elderville, Washington county, Pa., and had decided to return to this district.

proportions from the Mississippi river to the Pacific ocean.

The Hoover leaders claimed 235 electoral votes "were in the bag," while but 266 are required for election. The states listed as "certain" for Hoover were:

Pennsylvania 38; Ohio 24; Indiana 15; Illinois 29; Michigan 15; Minnesota 12; Iowa 13; North Dakota 5; Nebraska 8; Oklahoma 10; Kansas 10; Colorado 6; Wyoming 3; Utah 4; Nevada 3; Idaho 4; Oregon 5; Washington 7; California 13; Arizona 3; West Virginia 8.

Hoover has a great area, including the whole Atlantic seaboard, from which to pick up the missing 31 votes and to recover whatever states he might lose from his "certain" list.

Sure One Not In

The claims did not include the conceded Republican states of New England, such as Maine with 6 votes, and New Hampshire and Vermont with 4 each. They did not include the "doubtful" states of Montana and New Mexico in the west, or South Dakota in the farm belt, or Kentucky, Missouri and Maryland on the border. They included no states from the south, although the Hooverites will wage fights to win Tennessee, Alabama, Beorgia, Florida and North Carolina.

New York, Massachusetts, New Jersey, Connecticut and Rhode Island were left out of the estimate. The Republicans will go after New York with as much energy as though the presidential election depended on the outcome there, but Hoover leaders have become convinced that he can win the election without carrying New York.

Hoover will not add to his previous prohibition announcements for some time to come and then only if developments of the campaign justify further discussion of the issue. He would prefer to let the subject alone, regardless of his Democratic rival's activities in that direction.

Confident of West

Hoover came home confident he had won the farm belt to his farm relief program. He was rather enthusiastic over the outlook for holding the farm group in the Republican party. He even told some of his friends that farm relief had been taken out of presidential campaign, since the Democrats had failed to make any real issue of it.

The nominee was considering a Labor Day speech but the shortness of time may block it. If he does he probably will speak over the radio from his Washington office or home.

A crowd of 5,000 greeted Hoover's return last night.

Sounding a clarion call to arms, State Chairman Edward Martin today urged the Republicans of the commonwealth to qualify as voters as the first and most important step preparatory to participation in the November elections.

Martin revealed that the Republican battle lines have been formulated along the two-fold plan "to register or enroll" every man and woman "in every election precinct" and then "to tell the people the issues."

Issues To Be Clear.

"We are going to make these issues crystal clear," the state chairman declared. "It is our duty and we are going to bend every effort to present to the voters of every township, every borough, every city just what principles are involved in this election. We are content to leave the verdict in their hands."

Pointing out that Pennsylvania was "a great industrial state," Martin said that "the tariff is again the paramount issue" and "in the past a Democratic tariff has always resulted in business stagnation, shutting down of mills and suffering on the part of everyone through unemployment."

"Pennsylvania is a great industrial state," the state chairman said. "The Lehigh valley is a mighty factor in the business which has made the name of Pennsylvania products known wherever civilization is found. Its industries and its workers need the safety that the protective tariff system accords along with every other part of our commonwealth.

Pennsylvania Interested.

"Pennsylvania is vitally interested in the campaign this year because of the Democratic menace to the protective system. We rank 14th among the states in agricultural products. We have more than a million wage earners. Our production of raw materials annually runs into billions of dollars. If our thrifty farmers are to have a market for their products, if our industrious laboring people are to maintain their present high standard of living and capital be encouraged, then the principle of a protective tariff as administered by the Republican party must continue."

Martin also praised the Republican state administration, declaring that "our fiscal officers and other state officials have worked in unison to better our financial condition" and "our Republican governor has notably improved the physical condition of our public buildings, has extended our forest reserves, is continuing building of public highways and has approved larger appropriations to schools and hospitals than any other administration in our history."

The City of New York, loaded with 200 tons of supplies and carrying 31 members of the expedition was scheduled to sail at noon on the 9,200 mile trip to Dunedin, New Zealand. A reception will be held aboard the vessel before sailing and city officials and several backers of the exploration party will travel down the bay with the steamer. They will be returned to the city by the Tug Macom when the New York strikes the open sea.

Forty Boy Scouts from Erie were on hand to bid farewell to Paul Siple, Boy Scout chosen as a member of the party.

Bernt Balchen one of the pilots announced that the big three-motored Ford plane he brought from Detroit yesterday had responded to the tests satisfactorily. It, with three other planes will be packed on the Chelsea the second ship of the expedition which will sail next month. The entire party will be asembled at New Zeland before the trip to the Antarctic.

For some of them it was the first meeting in almost 25 years.

No, not a horse and buggy was seen yesterday! Automobiles were the order of the day. Friday's scene around the sheds there was quite a contrast to the one which probably featured the 100th anniversary of the establishing of the church.

The Westfield members are improving the cemetery located right in back of the church building. Under the supervision of Robert S. Clark, the men of the congregation have reshaped the lot, grading where necessary and repairing broken markers. They have erected a new granite marker over the graves of Charles Clark and his wife, Catherine, the pioneers of 1802, who, in the same year, gave with Walter Clark, another pioneer, the land on which the cemetery and church stand today. They were three of the charter members in the organizing of Westfield church.

The Westfield congregation should well feel proud of their beautiful church building. It is one that ranks with the best of the country churches throughout the nation. With its eleven Sunday school rooms and an auditorium with a seating capacity of over 400, the members of this congregation are to be congratulated for their untiring efforts to improve. It is one of the most promising country churches of this county, and Lawrence county has many of them.

The committee in charge of decorating the interior of the church for this important celebration deserves no little praise. The members effected a remarkable background for the week's services. Pine was used as a covering over the rear wall while letters spelling, "1803—Westfield—1928," formed from clusters of hydrangeas, announced the important years. The pulpit and platform resembled a florist's display and added real color to the occasion.

A letter of greeting from the congregation's former pastor, Rev. Albert J. McCartney, D. D., whose pastorship at that place closed on October 17, 1907, was read at the afternoon session. Dr. McCartney expressed his sincere regret that he was not able to be in this section of the country for the event. "I remember indeed," said Rev. McCartney in the writing, "the celebration of the 100th anniversary of the beginning of the church," and you all know my feeling of not being able to attend the 125th year observance." He was the pastor of the church in 1904 when the centennial of the institution took place, but since his departure from the Westfield district has been the minister of the First Presbyterian church of Santa Monica, Cal.

And too, just a word or two concerning the song of praise that was used in the afternoon service, and which they have been singing during the week, "The Church by the Side of the Road." It certainly fits in well with the Westfield congregation's program this week, for where could a more ideal church by the side of the road be found. Whoever chose the song made a fine choice.

Officers of the church provided a fine anniversary booklet for the members and friends who returned to the church Friday. It gave a complete story of the Westfield church, telling of the past, present and took a glance into the future. It was certainly prepared well. It is a fitting resume of the congregation's progress and future outlook, prepared under the direction of the pastor.

Other descendants of two others of the church's former ministers mingled with the crowd in the home-coming yesterday. E. C. McClelland, a grandson, and J. H. McClelland, a great-grandson of the Rev. James Wright, who occupied the pastorate in 1831, and who was the church's second leader, was there. Joseph I. Taylor of the Harbor, the only living brother of the historic church's fifth pastor, the Rev. William M. Taylor, D. D., was in attendance too, and made a few remarks concerning the days gone by. His two sisters, Mrs. Lucrecia McCloskey and Mrs. Adda White, are also well known. Mrs. White was out there Friday but the other sister was unable to be present. During the afternoon service, Rev. Haverfield asked all those persons related in some way to the late Dr. Taylor, either directly or through marriage, to rise. In response 15 descendants arose, and again the congregation paid tribute to another former pastor's memory.

Other things could be said about the Westfield church and its energetic congregation, but space does not permit. Columns could be written on its history and its future outlook. In another section of this issue is given the complete story of the home-coming celebration, which was so efficiently carried out. Those responsible for it deserve the credit, and as everything returns back to the ordinary, may the members and friends look forward to an even greater 150th celebration, 25 years hence. May the inspiration of the church's past come to bring about a greater Westfield in the tomorrow.

ward the Grange hall, where a most bountiful outlay, including chicken, corn and other delicacies, had been prepared. The general committee was in complete charge of the affair, but other groups were in direct charge of the dinner, such as the decorating, table-building, coffee and waiters' committee. And they did their work most efficiently.

Two sittings were held so that the enormous crowd could be accommodated. About 276 persons were counted at the first, and almost 100 at the last, making a total of almost 300 persons at both sittings.

Nothing was missing at the table. Almost everything had been prepared and was served abundantly. Over 70 cakes were contributed to the dinner by generous folks of the congregation—cakes of all colors and all descriptions. They were cut in large pieces so as to give each one his share, and they passed the cakes time and time again. Paper for the tables was donated by Fred L. Rentz, president of The News. The dinner was perfect, and that is the sum and substance of it all.

Splendidly Handled

The ladies of the church and the men who assisted are to be congratulated for their fine work and the excellent manner in which the meal was prepared. It was one that will be remembered for many a day.

At the close of the dinner the crowd returned to the church for a brief get-together and shortly after the home-coming program commenced. This was about two o'clock, eastern standard time.

After the doxology the Rev. Mr. Rhorbaugh of Volant was called upon to deliver the invocation.

Then came the message of greetings from the other churches of that denomination in this vicinity. Rev. Walter E. McClure, pastor of the First Presbyterian church of this city, represented this city. He brought the happy greetings from his congregation and asked God to invoke His divine blessing upon the church in the coming years.

At the close of Rev. McClure's greetings Mrs. David Stambaugh of Youngstown rendered a vocal solo, entitled "The Voice in the Wilderness'. Mrs. Stambaugh was accompanied by Mrs. John Gilmore, also of the Ohio city.

Rev. Elliott Speaks

Next in the line of greetings was the Rev. Paul Elliott, pastor of the Slippery Rock Presbyterian church, which was founded in 1801. He expressed his congregation's and his own wish of greater success for Westfield.

Then Mrs. Stambaugh sang another song of praise, "The Penitent". Mrs. Gilmore accompanied her again. This last solo, like the first, was lovely, and Mrs. Stambaugh displayed her talent in both of them.

Although the Neshannock Presbyterian church and the Hopewell Presbyterian congragation, the latter founded in 1800, had no representatives through some misunderstanding, the Rev. F. W. Frasier of the Poland Presbyterian church, Poland O., was in the audience and made an excellent speech in behalf of his people.

Choir Sings

Then came a selection by the choir entitled "From Glory Unto Glory", which was enjoyed by the audience.

Plans had been made to unveil a memorial tablet in honor of one of the congregation's former pastors, but it was learned yesterday that the bronze memorial had not been completed at the present, and would not be unveiled until later on.

The pastor of the church, the Rev. Ross M. Haverfield, then made his recognitions, thanking organizations and individuals of the church for their splendid work in various lines. He recalled the fidelity of the members when the present church was built, and said that their fidelity was the stepping stone of Westfield's progress. He urged the present members to show that same fidelity, and impressed the fact that they are doing such at the present time.

Before recognizing the individuals, Rev. Haverfield asked all those who were present at the centennial of the church to rise, and fully one-fifth of the audience did so.

Calls On Descendants

After calling upon several of the descendants of the church's former pastors, the minister recognized the Rev. R. E. Porter, his predecessor and who now is the pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Galion, O. The audience applauded the old church's former leader.

After the recognition and reminiscences, two members of the church choir sang a beautiful number. They were followed by the church in the singing of "The Church by the Side of the Road," which has been used in the historic institution's services throughout the past week.

Previous to the closing hymn and benediction, the pastor made a short address on the subject, "Westfield—Yesterday, Today and Tomorrow". He related the church's past briefly and glanced into tomorrow's Westfield. He declared that when the 150th anniversary of the church is held, many of those now living will have gone to their greater reward. "But our fond hope is that the same fine spirit of Christian devotion to Christ and His church will be as characteristic of the men and women of the congregation then as it has been through the years," said the pastor in the closing feature of the home-coming day program.

"How faithful will the people of the church be then?" We pray that it will be the same as has been so common to this church in by-gone days, and that their successors can rise up afterwards and call them blessed. And through it all may the spirit of Christ, our Lord and Maker, shine out above all," he concluded.

Closing Hymn

The closing hymn was sung and Rev. Haverfield pronounced the benediction, closing a most important program from which a bountiful harvest will undoubtedly be reaped, the home-coming day in Westfield's 125th year.

The general committee for the day under those direction the work and planning was done, consisted of W. S. Fullerton, chairman; Mrs. J. W. Brewster, Mrs. Harry E. Emery, Mrs. D. W. Woods and D. J. Gibson. Other committees which have been mentioned before, with the reception group, the parking committee and others deserve the high praise, for each member carried out his part in a most loyal and capable manner. Their work, we know, was not in vain. Future Westfield congregations will harvest what these untiring members have sown.

Girls At Camp East Brook Enjoy Hike Thursday

Girls Camp At East Brook Will End Monday Evening; Honor Emblems Awarded This Evening

(Contributed.)

The girls of Camp East Brook hiked to Cascade park on Thursday The provisions were taken in Miss Beal's car to the park. Dinner at noon consisted of potato salad, cold slaw, buns, pickles, lemonade and cake. In the afternoon some of the girls went swimming while others went in the funny house and on other amusements. Six o'clock supper consisted of buns, bologna, tomatoes baked beans, pickles and peaches.

All the girls boarded a town bound car at 7 o'clock headed for the theatre. At 10 o'clock two trucks brought us out to camp. We appreciated this lift very much.

Friday night the girls enjoyed a pajama party, then a "dip" in Lakewood. Afterwards a "feed" was held in the dining room. Yum, Yum. Such good ice cream sandwiches and cookies.

Saturday night will be campfire and the giving out of honor emblems and the much coveted "E" given for the most honors obtained during the eight weeks.

Monday is the last day of camp. How we do hate to leave. Many girls we shall not see until next sumer.

given to me. But most important of all, more courteous, responsive and faithful young people with which to work, I could not find anywhere.

Leaves With Regret

"Remembering this, I shall leave New Castle with the deepest regret, and with a secret hope that at some future time I may be permitted to return for another period of service."

Mr. Irvine explained that he could not have been more sincere than at the time when he first wrote to Dr. C. C. Green regarding the possibility of resigning. He stated in his first letter to the school superintendent that after a man has worked quite strenuously in a community and been before a public of a certain community for eight years, there is some chance of his ideas and methods getting a little stale. Under those conditions, he said, a new man in the same position could make greater progress in the work involved.

Dr. Green, says Mr. Irvine, immediately replied that he was wrong in thinking that about his work here, and that the school board would consider nothing as an excuse for resigning except his personal advantage somewhere else.

"That made it necessary for me to explain that three or four other positions had been offered to me, and they, in many ways seemed better than my present position. Having made that explanation, the superintendent and board of education were kind enough to release me.

Salary Not Object

"In fairness I should say that salary has not been the primary consideration involved. Had it been, I should have accepted a position in the west, where the salary would have been immediately very much higher than it is in the position which I am now accepting.

"I am glad that The News has given to me the opportunity to express myself, for I should not want any misunderstanding to result from my leaving New Castle," Irvine concluded.

"I was very much surprised when I returned to the city to find considerable discussion in connection with my resignation, and I was more surprised to find the stories in The News. I hope that this word of explanation will be able to clear the matter up."

CURTIS IN THE CABINET

ONE of the first official acts of President Harding was to invite Vice President Coolidge to attend the cabinet sessions. It established a precedent. Mr. Coolidge attended many of the sessions before his sudden ascendancy to the presidency. When the suggestion was made by Mr. Harding, constitutional purists argued that a rigid theory of the independence of the co-ordinate branches of government rendered it improper for the vice president to be so intimately associated with the executive branch, inasmuch as he was presiding officer of the senate and possessed a vote in case of a tie.

This contention overlooked the fact that the cabinet is no constitutional part of the executive branch of the government, but merely an advisory body, which chief executives, of their own free well, have constituted the heads of the executive departments.

There are many advantages in having the vice president take at least a listening part in the cabinet deliberations. Vice President Dawes chose not to attend cabinet meetings, but Secretary Hoover, if elected, would like to follow the precedent set by President Harding.

Senator Curtis has not expressed his opinion in the matter as Hoover's running mate, but, if elected and agreeable to Hoover's plan, he will prove a valuable counsellor of the president and his cabinet. Attendance at the cabinet sessions by Curtis would not embarrass Mr. Hoover, inasmuch as the two men are in accord on all important policies, and it would be the means of keeping the future presiding officer of the senate posted on white house and departmental policies.

BIG FIGURES

DURING the World war the American people learned to talk in millions and billions with surprising facility. During that period and since, American business learned to talk in the same terms and with equal ease. But to obtain a true and graphic picture of the extent to which business in the United States has expanded it is necessary to compare present conditions with those of thirty or forty years ago.

The total resources of all the national banks in the United States in 1886 were $2,500,000,000. That figure seems large until it is considered in connection with the proposed consolidation of two Chicago banks having combined resources of $1,000,000,000.

In 1900 the nation's bank clearings were only a little more than $85,000,000,000. Last year they were more than $540,000,000,000. Forty years ago banks with capital in excess of $1,000,000 were unheard of. There is now in New York City a bank with a capital of $75,000,000 and another being organized with a capital of $50,000,000.

There are many million-dollar industries in the United States, and not a few stores operated on a million-dollar basis. The modern corporation begins business with millions in capital, whereas it was but a few years ago that they were lucky to get a few thousands.

It is well to begin to stretch the mind to take in the new immensity toward which the nation is headed. Tomorrow the man on the street may be talking in trillions.

SO THIS IS IMPERIALISM!

A BRAND new theory of American "imperialism" is advanced by N. Lucien Romier, the French economist. He says this imperialism is financial. Admitting that the United States is free from any inclination to militarism, is devoid of even a secret desire to annex more territory by conquest and has no wish to impose its own form of government upon other peoples, he contends that America is imperialistic through its capital invested abroad.

If there has been any effort by the United States to control the financial operations of the world, it was dictated by the necessity of keeping nations solvent so they can repay money borrowed from American lenders. Certainly the creditor has the right to know what the debtor is doing with his money. But even with the best of intentions on the part of the creditor, this curiosity has an air of superiority and supervision.

Europe alone is responsible if the United States reigns over a financial imperialism. Thanks to American capital, Europe today has better cities, more and better factories equipped with modern machinery and operating capital for her governments and industries. Europe has been changed by American capital from a hopeless, poverty-stricken collection of unstable states to an independent and progressive group of co-operating nations.

If this is American financial imperialism, Europe should want more of it. When she finds the "yoke" burdensome she can cast it aside by settling in full.

Hints and Dints

Sun sets tonight 6:44. Sun rises tomorrow 5:21.

Mr. Hoover was responsible for a lot of farm teams going out into the country during the war and working on the farms to help the farmers. Men from the cities went out who were not used to that kind of work and never did get over it—and we are one of them. However, we are glad we were able to help Hoover win the war.

Kissing is like scandal—it goes from mouth to mouth.

People who have political aspirations should be careful what they say. Once we said something about stealing from railroads and when we aspired to a little office with no money in it all the votes in a railroad center were against us. Of course there were also a lot of ex-saloon keepers, extreme temperance advocates and all the alleged Republican leaders in the county against us. So those who would aspire guard your trap. Even the cigaret smokers were against us. Oh, wham de doodle wham! Also Omigosh!

When Gov. Smith gets to be president not a Republican will be fit to hold any office, no matter if they are for him now.

Architecture will be governed more or less in the future by airplanes we are told. No doubt the architecture will go more towards the building of dugouts and stone and cement habitiations with iron and steel roofs.

Our idea of a double crook is the one who has been a thief and outlaw with other crooks for a long time and then when he is caught squeals on his companions in crime. A traitor has not been respected much since the days of Judas. We are against crooks all the way at that.

"Shampoo, madam?"

"Yes."

A salesman was on his way from Camden, N. Y., to Atlantic City when he was asked by a man and woman for a lift. He took them in and later he looked into a revolver held by the man while the woman went through his pockets and took $160 and ordered him out of the car and lit out with the bus. After that happens to a man a few times he will not pick people up even going to church.

A woman in Baltimore wants a divorce from her husband because he is teaching their 3-year-old daughter to drink alcoholic drinks and to smoke. That is a little young for 'em to start and we do not blame the mother for kicking.

Having to stay at home enrages a man, but not like coming home and finding his wife isn't there.

A wife should be like roasted lamb—tender, nicely dressed and without sauce.

When Mr. Smith gets to be president things are going to be just perfect according to him.

It's always a pretty good plan if you have no brains yourself to hire some. Any man who is even smart enough to do that may get by.

Gov. Smith would have every state control it's own liquor laws. We remember once when Lawrence county had its own liquor laws it was a great help to a little burg called Lowellville. The only thing we get from there is light now. It was a great help to Lowellville while it lasted.

After we have partly digested the acceptance speech of Gov. Smith we come to the point where he referred numerous times to Jefferson, Cleveland and Wilson. Isn't Jefferson the chap who made a Bible of his own? We can still remember how hungry we were when Cleveland was president. And didn't Wilson veto the Volstead act? Of course they were all good Democrats and did a lot of nice things while they were president. If a lot of orators did not refer to some patriots they would get no applause at all.

'Simile for a political year: "As regular as a boarding house menu."

We are more of the opinion than ever that preachers will do well to keep from argufying about Governor Smith from the pulpit. He will take advantage of it and of everything else you can bet on that. He is out to win

We think about the rottenest sin a human can commit is to lie about some other human. This means telling something that the teller does not know if true or not—and even if true. A lot of people think it is perfectly all right to repeat everything they hear. What would happen if newspapers published all the rumors that float around. Mighty few people would be out of jail and those who would be out would not be worth putting in. Be sure you are right before you tell any tale.

If he clears his throat before each sentence, he wears a white shirt on a fishing trip and expects his wife to call him "mister."

We know a man who has a nice big fat fur lined automobile and he calls it "Satan" because it leaves everything on the road behind it.

A woman in Washington wants a divorce because her husband has only taken her out once in 30 years. He has also become a drunkard and has abused her constantly. We know of some ladies who would not have stood for that bum very long and would have "fed" him something when it would have taken the best effect.

The publisher of a Michigan newspaper on the return from a trip to Europe had to pay $18,000 fine on $9,000 worth of goods he failed to declare. He must have been one of those plutocratic publishers we hear so much about and do not see.

In one of the bus rides Jake Rantz and his family took in California big tree country a sort of a mollycoddle was along. One morning after the bus had gotten well under way this bird yelled to the driver that he had lost his cap and the driver went back half a mile or so to get it. The next time the bus started out this bird again yelled to the driver "I have lost my cap." The bus driver yelled back, 'You sure have."

GIRL'S BIG CHICKEN BUSINESS.

Freda Bliss, Mansfield, Mass., embarked in the chicken business at 15. Now she is 19 but every year since she has gotten into the business a little deeper. She is this year the manager of a hatchery that turns out broilers and egg producers at the rate of 30,000 a day. The nearness of the big cities creates a large and insistent demand and this enterprising New England girl is cashing in on it. With all that she is womanly. "You've no idea how attached you can become to the tiny bits of yellow feathers" she tells a newspaper correspondent sent to interview her, "and the way they turn into money before your eyes is most interesting.' Also it is that which counts.

America is indeed a great country. Mr. Hoover was a poor orphan boy on a farm and Mr. Smith used to mooch around a fish market on the East Side of New York. If either is elected they will be called upon in the White House by the best people in this country. America is great.

SENILITY.
By
FRANKLYN BLANNING.

Where are the dreams of yesterday,
With them I sailed the skies?
Cruel need drove them away
The need that crucifies.

Where are the loves of long ago,
For I am all alone?
Fleeting were they as April snow
When by soft breezes blown.

Where are the hopes of bloded youth,
I care not for lean fears,
So hurt were they by bitter truth,
They now are mutineers.

Where are my old friends of the past
I wish I could count one?
Death, O so still, has called the last
Because his work was done.

Why do I want to strive to live
When all good things have failed?
Wisdom of life I have to give
To those who will be led.

STOPPED JUST IN TIME

Bobby lives on the West Side. "Do you suppose" he asked his father "if I coaxed God to bring me a little brother or sister he would do it?" Dad told Bobby he might try. And so every night for a long time Bobby added to his "Now I lay me" an earnest solicitation that a baby brother be brought to his home period. But no baby brother came and Bobby grew discouraged and finally quit. Then one day daddy told Bobby he could go to the farm and visit grandma. That suited Bobby tiptop. A few weeks later he was loath to leave the farm until daddy told him his prayer had been answered and God had brought him a playmate. At home when they led him to the bed to see his his little brother—and sister—for there were two he was rapturous with delight. Looking tenderly at his mother and coming close he whispered "I'm awfully glad God brought them—we'll keep both won't we mother? But it's lucky I stopped praying when I did."

Foaming Beer, Full Pocket

It Ended Happily.

Sad For Burglars.

By ARTHUR G. BRISBANE
(Copyright, 1928, by N. Y. American, Inc.)

When Postmaster-General New wisely reduced air mail charges to five cents for a one-ounce letter, it was suggested here that advertisers help our air service and attract attention by utilizing the air mail.

On Tuesday, in Lansing, Mich., the Reo Motor Car Company sent out ten tons of air mail advertising by the Thompson Aeronautical Corporation.

On the 350,000 one-ounce letters the government collected $17,500. It took 18 airships to carry the letters 175 miles to Chicago, when the letters were distributed to far western points by other airplanes.

Ordinary advertising by mail is waste. It costs five to forty times more than newspaper or magazine advertising per person reached. In addition, advertising mail matter is usually thrown into the waste paper basket.

But everybody opens an air mail letter, thinks about it, reads what's in it.

Use air mail in your business and promote flying.

Thomas F. Healy tells Cyrus H. K. Curtis that the fight between Hoover and Smith is a fight between "the foaming beer bucket and the full dinner pail."

The beer bucket is a big issue undoubtedly, also the non-foaming hip flask. But in these days of high wages the old-fashioned "full dinner-pail" has lost importance.

The full POCKETBOOK is the modern issue.

The court of Baku, Azerbaijan, if you know just where that is, supplies a plot that would have delighted Edgar Allan Poe.

A beautiful girl, very rich, was chained to the floor in a subterranean passage for four years by an uncle and cousin, who wanted her money.

The uncle goes to jail for ten years, the son for six years.

The girl will get her large fortune and marry her "penniless lover." Things do end happily sometimes.

Discouraging to industrious burglars is a new vault, typical of the times, built by the Chase National Bank.

Three stories deep, the vault contains an elevator, stands on a piece of land worth $5,000,000 and is entirely surrounded with reinforced concrete 12 feet thick. The bottom of this vault is 85 feet below the ground, on solid rock.

To tell how much money is in it would make the burglars TOO sad.

Women, old and young are so brave it amazes you. Any woman will run into a fire and burn to save her child. Any woman will stand between a bullet and somebody that she likes.

Here comes Miss Nancy Glave, intelligent, young, good-looking, offering to jump from an airplane every day by parachute to help a charitable undertaking.

She never jumped from an aeroplane in her life. That makes no difference.

The Ile de France, eastbound launched an airplane 100 miles this side of the Scilly Islands sending important mail to Paris 15 hours ahead of the Ile de France landing.

The French has thus established a combination ship and airplane delivery for mail, saving 30 hours on the round trip.

This will be remembered if we ever have a war. One plane from Europe or Asia could drop on any city enough poison gas to kill 200,000 human beings.

In seven days New York's telephone company collected $3,858 for answering "what time is it?" Those that asked the time and paid for an answer numbered 77,160.

At that rate "smiling voice" young ladies, looking at the clock, without effort would collect for the telephone company $200,616 every year. Nickels count in big things.

Get a reliable timepiece.

Windsor, Ont., witnesses swear that Canada's rum king, who does his ruling from Detroit, on the American side, spends $10,000 a month "for sales promotion."

Sales promotion is sometimes described as "watering the flowers." It means handing money to those that COULD interfere with you if they wanted to, but don't when the flowers are properly watered.

More business failures in Italy, 6,016 of them is six-months.

Business men blame their troubles on the high price of the lira, stabilized by Mussolini. He wanted to make Italian money more valuable, to help the Italian people.

Business people say, "We need cheap money that we may hire labor for less REAL money and thus compete with other nations."

France, stabilizing the franc at 1 cent below the lira, has helped French business.

Statistics show beyond any doubt that locomotives aint th' least bit scared o' flivvers—an' trolley cars aint much afraid of 'em, either.

JANE ADDAMS FOR THE NOBEL PEACE PRIZE

The Women's International League for Peace and Freedom is proposing its International President, Jane Addams, as a candidate for the Nobel Peace Prize.

A glance at the names of the persons who have received this prize shows that it has been given to only one woman) Baroness Bertha von Suttner, of Austria, in 1905.

Since the enfranchisement of women in many countries they have shown a remarkable influence upon public life and thought and this influence should be more fully recognized.

There are two means of preventing war, and the prevention of war is by far the most important question in the world today. Another war like the last one would be too horrible in its effects to contemplate.

One of the ways is by politics. The League of Nations was one political plan and Mr. Kellogg's efforts constitute another. Sincere wishers for peace are in favor of trying any of these plans if they will work. Whether Mr. Wilson's plan or Mr. Kellogg's is adopted we do not care, so long as something is done.

But there is something necessary to this end besides political action and diplomatic arrangements.

That thing is public opinion. It is as necessary for the majority of people on earth who desire to avoid war to make public opinion effective, as it is to have the machinery for doing away with war.

Hardly any name can be mentioned among the workers for peace that is more conspicuous than that of Jane Addams, founder of Hull House and holder of degrees from many universities and colleges, vice president for many years of the American Peace Society, writer and lecturer upon peace topics in many countries. She is pre-eminently qualified to receive this prize.

She has been called "America's

The World AND THE Mud Puddles

STRANGE, VERY STRANGE.

When the Volstead Act was enacted, California grape growers were aghast. They saw nothing but ruin ahead. Some even plowed under their beautiful vineyards and planted other crops. They are now busy replanting and planting greater than ever before. So does the Prohibition Act work.

Two and a quarter millions of tons of grapes were harvested in California in 1927 and these tons were distributed to points in all of the States, in Canada, and in Cuba, according to the Department of Agriculture.

Nearly 75,000 carloads were fresh grapes. The rapid growth of the great industry in California since 1919 has accentuated the natural difficulties involved in marketing so highly perishable a crop, so that unusual means were necessary to get the widest possible distribution among consumers.

The California Vineyardists Association last year cooperated with the Department of Agriculture in assembling the first reasonably complete detailed record of the distribution of the crop, by localities receiving grapes and by varieties, as a basis for distribution of later crops.

The reports show that California now produces more grapes than all the other States combined.

What the reports made to the Government do not show are the varied uses to which these great quantities of grapes are put by the consumers.

LITTLE TRIALS

Save your strength for heavy crosses,
Whimper not at little losses.
Let not trifles be your master.
Save your sighs for real disaster.
Trouble has the knack of downing
Those that are too quick at frowning.

Trouble has the knack of trying
Those that are too quick at sighing.
If you let the small things fret you,
If a trifle can upset you,
What will happen, some tomorrow
When you're face to face with sorrow?

Of the small hurts let's be heedless.
Half the tears we shed are needless.
Many a friendship has been broken
By some word in anger spoken.
Many a family has been parted
By a feud a trifle started.

Temper is a brainless master.
He will whip us to disaster.
Any fool has words for swearing.
Lives are spoiled by too much scaring
Whimper not at little losses,
Save your strength for heavy crosses.

COSTA RICA WINS ATTENTION BY MONROE DOCTRINE QUERY.

An innocent query from Costa Rica has unceremoniously catapulted that country into a conspicuous place among the nations of the world. Having been invited to join the League of Nations, it asks the League to interpret the Monroe Doctrine, American observers are in doubt whether to view the matter facetiously or consider it as a serious piece of diplomacy. It is agreed that the Doctrine means "hands off," but the exact legal definition is lacking.

"It has a flavor of impish humor," in the opinion of the SOUTH BEND TRIBUNE, which suggests that "the request was dictated, apparently, by the Costa Rica desire to have something done about the Monroe Doctrine, with the League as the doer." The Tribune believes, however, that "Great Britain, dominant in the League, could interpret the Monroe Doctrine in a manner satisfactory to Costa Rica, but the British interpretation is necessarily for private consumption."

"Since it is nothing but a declaration of this country's policy," advises the NEWARK EVENING NEWS, "outsiders have nothing to do with it, and would only court bad feeling, should they attempt to tell us what it means." Referring, however, to a similar attitude on the part of Argentina, The News remarks: "The Argentina-Costa Rica move cannot be counted as friendly. It represents a Latin-American spirit of hositility which it should be one of our first duties and policies to remove. The undefined Monroe Doctrine is one of the greatest obstacles."

A different view is presented by the MANCHESTER UNION, which observes that some experts "are inclined to believe that the request is made in a spirit of hostility to the League. Costa Rica withdrew from the League two years ago," continues The Union. "Recently she has shared with Spain and Brazil in the invitation from Geneva for the return of the three disaffected members. While Spain has accepted this invitation, Brazil has rejected it, and now Costa Rica, whether for a friendly or hostile reason, has chosen to hinge her return upon this novel communication." That paper points to friction over the route of the Nicaragua Canal, but adds that "the matter is assumed to be dropped."

"Though perfectly fair and legitimate, it is nevertheless an embarrassing question," admits the SAN FRANCISO BULLETIN, with the further statement: "Interpreting the Monroe Doctine is no simple task for the legal mind, though its meaning is perfectly simple to every lay American. The man in the street knows that it means, 'Hands off the Americans,' as a warning to all nations outside the continent. But the legal mind keeps on writing book after book about the Monroe Doctrine, and each new volume reveals some new point of view."

"The important thing is and always has been," as viewed by the BUFFALO EVENING NEWS, "that behind the Monroe Doctrine in its varying interpretation has stood the power of the United States. The fact that for many decades it was never recognized as part of international law, and that its validity never was officially admitted by the powers, as was, let us say, the open-door policy with respect to China, has made not the slightest particle of difference.*The League has so far scrupulously refused to take any active part in Latin-American affairs, even those which, because they menace the friendly relations of nations in the League, would seem to come directly within the purview of the Geneva body."

"The political leaders of nearly all nations fully realize that no interpretation placed upon all or any part of the Monroe Doctrine by an international agency could carry any weight with the United States," asserts the KALAMAZOO GAZETTE, with the warning as to the League's position: "European statesmen can well remember how prominent a part the Doctrine played in the controversy over our proposed entry into the League nearly a decade ago. If they still harbor any hopes of American membership in the Geneva body, they also realize that one of the best ways to shatter these hopes would be by allowing the League to become involved in a dispute over the scope of the Monroe Doctrine."

Veteran Ohio Judge Is Dead

Judge N. B. Billingsley Of Lisbon, O., Dies At Cambridge Springs, Pa.

HEART DISEASE CAUSE OF DEATH

(International News Service)

CAMBRIDGE SPRINGS, Pa., Aug. 52.—Judge N. B. Billingsley, 78, of Lisbon, O., eminent jurist, corporate lawyer and railroad executive, is dead today. Coming to this resort for his health, he waged a losing battle with heart disease and succumbed yesterday.

Born and reared in Columbiana county, O, Judge Billingsley rose to an important position in business and political activities in eastern Ohio and western Pennsylvania.

Served Railroad Companies.

His railroad connections were varied. He was president of the Pittsburgh, Lisbon & Western railroad, the line which was acquired recently by the Montour Railroad company, subsidiary of Pittsburgh Coal company. The judge's latest interest with the Pittsburgh, Lisbon & Western concerned the projection of the road from Smiths Ferry, Pa., to Youngstown, O.

In addition, Judge Billingsley served as counsel for the Erie railroad and general counsel for the Pittsburgh, Marion & Chicago railroad.

After graduating from Mount Union college at Alliance, O., he studied law and was admitted to the bar in 1873. From 1893 to 1900 he was judge of the Columbiana county supreme court of common pleas.

He is survived by a son, Attorney Horace McCook Billingsley of New York.

FRIGHTFUL WRECK TIES UP TRAFFIC; OVER 150 INJURED

It is charged that he ordered Motorman McCormack to start the train after the damaged switch which caused the wreck was declared to have been repaired.

Meanwhile three investigations into the wreck were begun. One was conducted by the Interborough Rapid Transit Company among its employes, another by Mayor James J. Walker and a special committee, and a third by the transit commission. The investigations were hampered by clashes between Mayor Walker and the police on the one hand, and Interborough officials on the other. Police charged that the Interborough officials refused to produce employes needed as witnesses and Mayor Walker ordered that Frank Hedley, president of the Company, be arrested. This order was revoked, however, when Hedley promised to produce the employes wanted.

Investigation Under Way

The investigations got under way today, with questioning of Motorman McCormack, who was in charge of the train, and Switchman Baldwin.

Police Commissioner Warren charged today that subway employes at the Times Square station knew that the damaged switch which caused the wreck was defective. The train was held at the station five minutes while repairmen worked at the switch, he said. When asked why the train was allowed to proceed at its regular speed over the defective switch, Interborough officials said they would make no statement until the company's official inquiry was completed.

The damaged switch was split by the ninth car of the train, which had just pulled out of the station. The steel side of the car was ground off when it crashed against the platform and heavy pillars supporting the street above, and ripped through the concrete supporting wall.

The screaming passengers of the eighth car, packed in like sardines, were thrown onto the tracks. Fire, caused by short circuiting and burning insulation, turned the tunnel into a shambles.

An Inferno

Into this inferno were catapaulted the terror-stricken occupants of the eighth car, which tore loose from the train and toppled over near the burning wreckage of the ninth. The falling passengers clutched at available supports in the car but were swept relentlessly into the flaming wreckage by the oncoming human wave behind them. Heaps of glass and jagged chunks of steel tore at the flesh of those fortunate enough to escape the searing flames. Subway employes at the station cut off the power in the third rail, saving countless others from death.

The forward half of the severed ninth car skidded down the tracks like a headless horseman and collapsed. The rear end of the car was telescoped by the tenth and last car.

The screams of the victims, reverberating through the tunnel like the death agonies of wild beasts, were borne to ears of thousands of homegoers who crowded the platform of the Times Square station. Terrified by the shrill cries of the dying, by the flashes of electrical fire and by the smudgy smoke which filled the tunnel, the rush-hour crowd became panic stricken and fought to reach the exits.

Rescue Work Starts

A detective pulled police and fire alarms and recruited scores of patrolmen who cleared the platforms and began rescue work. Dozens of ambulances from fourteen hospitals arrived and carried away the bodies.

Those of the 1800 passengers who could walk staggered along the tunnel to the platform in a daze. Women moaned and mumbled prayers, and strong men were shaken by the horror they had witnessed. All were blackened by smoke. With averted eyes they passed by the chaos on the tracks. The gruesome debris included two heads of decapitated victims.

All service of the line was cut off, traffic was prohibited on Seventh avenue above the scene of the wreck and Colonel John R. Slattery, deputy chief engineer of the board of transportation, ordered the damaged supporting pillars reinforced with shoring. After a thorough survey of the structural damage, he reported there was no danger of the street above the station caving in.

When the power was cut off several trains along the line were stalled. Their occupants were forced to walk along the track to the nearest stations to reach the street.

Cut Away Debris

Rescue work proceeded slowly throughout the evening. With the aid of acetylene torches, workmen cut away the entangled mass of wreckage, removed the bodies of the dead and free injured passengers pinned down by steel.

Five priests administered final rites to the dying, who had been laid on piles of newspapers on the platform.

Several children, crying for their lost parents, ran up and down the platform.

Emergency wards of nearby hospitals were overtaxed by the influx of injured passengers. Several of the victims were mangled so badly that identification was difficult.

Young People's Conference On At Rose Point

Supper And Get-Together Opens Eighth Annual Affair Of Y. P. U.

WILL CONTINUE UNTIL SEPT. 3

A splendid crowd of young people were present Friday evening for the opening session of the eighth annual conference of the Covenanter Young People's Union of the Pittsburgh Presbytery at the Rose Point camp.

The meeting opened with supper and a get-together meeting in the cabin. The meeting was featured with a fine interest and enthusiasm and was a forerunner of the good meetings which will follow all next week.

This morning the praise and devotional hour was led by Rev. D. Bruce Martin of Sharon, Ia., who is camp father and leader of sports. The junior hour was conducted by Mrs. A. A. Wylie of Pittsburgh. The address of the morning was given by Dr. W. J. Coleman of Geneva College, who gave a pleasing talk on "The Psalms in Worship". The afternoon was spent in various forms of recreation.

This evening at eight o'clock Rev. D. Bruce Martin will speak on "Problems of Our Young People".

The Sunday services will open with the Sunday school at 10 o'clock. At 11 a. m. Rev. Paul D. McCracken, pastor of the Rose Point Reformed Presbyterian church will preach. There will be a praise service at 4:30 p. m. and a vesper service at five p. m., in charge of Rev. A. A. Wylie. The day's program will close with campfire and worship at 8:30.

The delegates attending the conference from the Reformed Presbyterian church of this city includes Marietta and Dorothy Daugherty, Gerald Allen, Harold Grossman, Oscar Riley and Donald Williams.

Rev. D. Bruce Martin will preach Sunday at the morning service in the Reformed Presbyterian church of this city.

The conference will continue until Monday, Sept. 3. On Labor Day there will be a picnic of the entire Presbytery.

Elks Choose Delegates For State Convention

George W. Thomas, exalted grand ruler; Clark H. Buell, esteemed leading knight and William P. Mitchell, secretary of the New Castle lodge No. 69, B. P. O. E. have been chosen as delegates to the annual convention of the Pennsylvania State Elks association which convenes at Conneaut Lake park on Monday, August 27 and continues through until Thursday, August 30.

They were elected to this position at a recent meeting of the lodge.

utterance that "the United States could not view any interposition by foreign powers for the purpose of oppressing or controlling any independent governments in this hemisphere in any other light than as the manifestation of an unfriendly disposition toward this government," the YOUNGSTOWN VINDICATOR states: "The republics there owe their existence to the security they had while becoming firmly established. It is clear from the events of time that the Monroe Doctrine was a policy with the force of law, with the United States, long before the League of Nations covenant recognized it."

"Somewhere out there in the offing is the Monroe Doctrine—what is left of it. How much is that?" asks the FORT WORTH RECORD-TELEGRAM, with the suggestion: "Those who are destined to travel the tortuous channel between the Scylla of international relations within the League, and the Charybdis of our elastic translation of the Monroe Doctrine are in need of a navigator's chart and all available soundings.•••• Someone once described the present Monroe Doctrine as 'a political pull and a company of marines.' When Costa Rica gets its answer, how much more instructive than that will it be?"

"Much more attention is being given to the Costa Rican plea than the subject warrants. It is interesting but not at present important," says the HARRISBURG TELEGRAPH, while the INDIANAPOLIS NEWS concludes that "the safest forecast—if any forecast concerning diplomacy can be at all safe—is that the affair will have no serious outcome, and it is not improbable that nothing more will be heard of it."

Man Handcuffed To Pole During Raid

Considerable excitement was occasioned in the Seventh ward district, early this morning, when it was reported to Officer John Golis in the lower part of the ward, that there was a man handcuffed to a telephone pole at the corner of Mahoning avenue and Cedar street and apparently in some distress from his rather awkward position.

When Officer Golis and others arrived at the scene, he found the man, who was under the influence of liquor, had almost slid down to the ground and surrounded by a large group of excited persons.

Officer Golis unlocked the handcuffs and placed the man in the nearby police car after locking the handcuffs. It developed on investigation that the man had been arrested by Officer Lockard enroute to a raid at 208 Mahoning avenue and had been left there handcuffed to the pole, until after the raid had been completed.

The situation caused great excitement in the district until the matter had been explained. The man was removed to the city police station with the persons arrested in the raid. He is said to have been handcuffed to the pole fully half an hour.

Officers Break Up Gambling Game

Officers Thomas and McMullen in inspecting the Mahoning avenue district early this morning, came upon a gambling game at 208 Mahoning avenue.

After making sure that the game was in progress, the central office was asked for assistance and other officers and the patrol were detailed to the scene.

They found the owner of the home was absent at work and that the game was in charge of D. C. Hamilton, a roomer in the place. Hamilton and nine visitors were arrested and taken to the police station.

Hamilton was this morning assessed a fine of $25 as the keeper of a disorderly house, while the nine visitors were assessed a fine of $10 each, as visitors in a disorderly house by Mayor William H. Gillespie. This enriched the city treasury to the extent of $115. The principals were all negroes.

The question is, will the college boy who bums a ride expect somebody to give him a ride all through life?

Olympic Methods Decried By Coach Of Homestead Girls

Declares That Swimmers From Homestead Not Given Fair Treatment

(International News Service)

HOMESTEAD, Pa., Aug. 25.—The apple of discord bobbed wildly today on the turbulent waves of another amateur sport—this time it's swimming that feels the dissension, and the factions involved are the Olympic swimming officials, the Homestead Library Club and the Women's Swimming Association of New York, one of the most powerful organizations in aquatic circles.

Jack Scarry, coach of the Homestead library team, today issued a bitter denouncement of the treatment of the two Homestead members of the Olympic team, Misses Josephine McKim and Miss Susan Laird. Scarry charged the two local mermaids were discriminated against in favor of the Women's Swimming Association.

Misses McKim and Laird were withdrawn from the finals of the 100-meter relay event in favor of Misses Norelius and Lambert of the Women's Swimming Association after the two Homesteaders, coupled with Miss Albina Osipowich of Worcester, Mass., and Miss Gerratti of California, had won the first heat in world's record time.

"The New York club was heartbroken that their swimmers did not qualify for the 100-meter relay, but they were determined to put their swimmers on it, and to accomplish it McKim and Laird had to be the martyrs," Scarry said. "It was politics, because there are not even any rules that permit a substitution after a preliminary heat has been raced."

Scarry had waited until the return of the Olympic swimmers before giving vent to his feelings. He heard the complaints of their treatment last night when they returned home. They were given a monster celebration here last night by the townspeople and civic organizations.

To Hold Hearing For Unused Roads

Hearings on five roads, located in and about Pulaski, which are to be abandoned, will take place at the court house next week, according to Attorney Norman Martin, who, with the viewers, inspected the roads Friday morning and afternoon.

The hearings, as announced this morning, will take place on August 29 30 and 31 and September 4 and 5.

Roads to be abandoned, states Mr. Martin, will include one which originated on the Pulaski-New Wilmington highway a few miles outside Pulaski and runs north into Mercer county. The second road is in Pulaski and runs from the bridge to the site of the old grist mill.

The third is on the west side of the river, starting about half way up the hill and parallel to the river, it runs to West Middlesex. The fourth runs north and south from the Pulaski-Youngstown road, and the fifth is a part of the Youngstown-Pulaski road.

Viewers were Roy Mercer, W. J. Davis and J. W. Mayne of Ellwood City.

Resided In House On Present News Site

James G. Moore of Gates Mills, O., a suburb of Cleveland, O., former resident of the city, was a visitor in the city today with his wife and two sons. Mr. Moore was especially interested in visiting The News office and showing it to his family, owing to the fact that some 45 years ago he resided in a house that at one time occupied the present location of The News building. He stated that this city had progressed wonderfully since he was a resident of the city, and that The News building was one of the great changes from his early life in this city.

VACATION SCHEDULE FOR CHURCHES NEARING END

New Wilmington Pastor Writes Interestingly Of Lands Across Sea

In a letter to one of his friends in New Wilmington, Rev. J. Ralph Neale, pastor of the New Wilmington U. P. church, writes in a most interesting manner of his experiences while abroad. His letter is dated from Interlaken, Switzerland, and follows:

Interlaken, Aug. 10, 1928.

Dear Friends:—

Some little time has elapsed since my London letter and in the meantime many very interesting things have happened. Among the outstanding events in London, since my last letter, was a reception by Sir Ramsey McDonald and Sir Arthur Henderson at the House of Commons. The tea was served in the court between the Parliament building and the Thames river in an environment of beauty and history. One has strange emotion in such renowned surroundings. During tea the gong sounded, calling our distinguished hosts back into the House of Commons for a vote on some Scottish tax bill. Well, after tea, we were escorted into one of the committee rooms of Parliament where we heard informal addresses by both of our hosts. One may differ widely from these two venerable characterstersin their political conclusions, but one can never doubt their sincerity, nor their zeal for the common uplift of their fellowmen. Mr. McDonald's last earnest appeal to us as representative Americans was in these words, "You Americans can keep Europe's eyes on eternal virtues if you will. You can be a world provincial power, or a great moral world power." This appeal I shall not soon forget, and hope it may serve as an inspiration to those who direct the destiny of our great nation.

I had also a very interesting weekend in the historic city of Canterbury. The cathedral there is of unusual architecture and historic interest. It was in this cathedral that Thomas A. Becket was murdered, and his shrine there was visited by tens of thousands of pilgrim saints. The choir, which is some 20 or 30 steps above the nave is one of the most beautiful of the cathedrals of England. We were also received by the Archbishop of Canterbury at the Lambeth palace in London. The old archbishop, Dr. Davidson, is a most saintly and gracious man, and greatly beloved by all his people. He is expected to soon give way his post to a younger successor.

We left London on the evening of July 19th, embarking from Harwick for the Hooks of Holland. We landed early in the morning in the quaint country of the Netherlands. It was rather refreshing to strike a country which had not been bled white by the ravages of war. Holland has little local resources, but seems quite progressive and prosperous. Her chief source of wealth is in her colonial possessions.

Germany presented quite a striking contrast to quiet, peaceful Holland. While at present peaceful enough, yet sad through the ravaging plague of war. Germany is shorn of all her pre-war military pomp and pride. The Unter den Linden, once its boulevard of regal and military parade, is strikingly destitute of even unarmed soldiers. This is no evil omen, but other signs in Germany are not so hopeful. Politically, Germany seems to be fast approaching stability. She has more than a score of political parties, from the old conservative imperialists to the most ambitious communists. Industrially, Germany is making marked progress, but she is heavily burdened financially by her reparation obligations. She exhibits great courage and hopefulness, and seems surprisingly free from hatefulness and revenge.

Our outstanding sight seeing experience was our trip to Pottsdam. It was from his home in Pottsdam that the former kaiser departed for the war-front in 1918, and then into exile. The beauty of Pottsdam with its famous San Sousi palace rivals Versailles in magnificence.

Our stay in Czechoslovakia was most delightful. There is one nation in Europe, at least, which loves America. The citizens of Prague welcomed us most enthusiastically. Prague is a grand old city of varied interests. President Masaryk is greatly beloved by his people and is one of the leading statesmen of all Europe.

Austria is perhaps the saddest of all the war countries yet visited. Vienna is a beautiful city, which without tourist money would be seriously restricted. Austria has been shorn of all her most valuable resources. She is dependent on other nations for most of her coal and raw materials, but in putting up a heroic struggle to redeem herself with all the nations of the world. Her statesmen hold little hope of Austria's future success apart from union with Germany.

It was wholesome as well as restful to retreat from the well-ordered, and yet strenuous program of six weeks into the invigorating atmosphere of the Alps of Switzerland. I am writing now in full view of the majestic Jung-frau. Yesterday I stepped out on one of its glaciers—the Elger—I walked out over its snow and ice for some distance, and reveled in the grandeur of it all. I am now stopping at the Central hotel in Interlaken, and could scarcely imagine a more wholesome environment in which to rest. Wish you might all be here with me.

I leave tomorrow morning for Geneva for a week of study under the direction of the Geneva Institute of International Relations. From there we shall go to Paris for a week, and I hope to sail for the land I love most, August 29, 1928. I shall be good and ready to return to the quiet of New Wilmington again.

Sincerely,
J. RALPH NEALE.

Complete Painting Of Interiors In Two City Churches

Interiors Of First Presbyterian And Methodist Churches Painted And Redecorated Throughout

Painting and completing of the interiors of two of the largest churches in the city has just been completed. The interiors of the First Presbyterian church and the First Methodist Episcopal church on North Jefferson street have been completely redecorated and painted.

Painters have been working on the two buildings for the past month and a half and the work has just been completed. In both churches the auditoriums, Sunday school rooms and other rooms as well as the halls have been completely redecorated.

The work in the First Presbyterian edifice has been completed for some little time and occupation of the entire building is possible. In the Methodist structure which was not started as soon and is a larger church. Use of the latter church throughout the building is not possible.

Walls in both churches have been painted in a tan, while all designs and trimmings in the interiors have been done by hand.

SLIGHT ACCIDENT REPORTED TO POLICE

Cars of Mrs. J. L. Tomb of the state of Indiana and L. W. Smith of 1105 Delaware avenue, came together at Butler avenue and East Washington street, Friday, both machines being damaged to some extent. No person was injured. Mrs. Tomb was making a left hand turn from Washington street onto Butler avenue and had the turn almost made, when Mr. Smith, who was enroute west on Washington street, in trying to avoid a collision with the Tomb car, put on his brakes and his machine skidded into the Indiana car.

PETER'S ADVENTURES in ANIMAL LAND

BY MRS. FLORENCE SMITH VINCENT

"NO MATTER WHICH WAY WE LOOKED ALL WAS BEAUTIFUL"

BETWEEN SKY AND SEA

At this last remark of Mr. Bobolink's, Mrs. Bobolink laughed and said in an aside to Peter but so loud you could hear:

"And I said 'what are you talking about, Bob, anyhow? Haven't I been ready ever since we left the seaweed? Come on, now. Catch me if you can.' Then off I flew."

"But it didn't take me long to fly up to you," cried Bobolink. "And what a sail that was! The air was delightfully cool and the sun bright and warm, so we were neither too hot nor too cold. Below us were the dancing waves, with here and there and everywhere specks of white foarm with which the sunbeams played a merry game of tag. Above us soft fleecy white clouds floated lazily across the blue sky. No matter which way we looked everything was beautiful.

"On and on we flew. The Great Ball hung right above us now only it was red no longer but golden, and so bright that it made our eyes blink to look toward it. Once when we tried to, we bumped into each other—its light had made both wife and I quite blind for a moment. We didn't try it again. It is not pleasant to be flying over the deep water and lose your sight—even for a second. Then the Ball rolled slowly to one side—the opposite side to where it had been before it rose so high—and dropped lower and lower. After a while its rays made a path for us in the water. How pretty it was, all shining and glittery! Little by little the light changed. Now it was golden no longer, but the loveliest color wife and I had ever seen. We argued whether it was pink or yellow or lavender, and at last we decided that the sun had painted the far off sky with a little bit of each, and blended them, so one could not tell where one began and the other ended. At last the Great Ball dropped over the edge of the earth and the Silver Ball rolled after it, trying to catch it perhaps. But we knew it never could; we had seen it try too often. At last the Sky God lighted his candles, and they twinkled at us as much as if to say 'Hurry up, little birds, we will light you on your way as long as we can, but make haste, for when the winds of dawn blow us out, it will be dark and dreary. The shore of your homeland is near at hand, little birds. Have courage and you will soon be there'."

Corn Fifteen Feet High On Farm In State

(International News Service)

WAYNESBORO, Pa., Aug. 25.—Iowa is not the only state "where the tall corn grows". Pennsylvania has an adequate example of "tall" corn on the farm of Brownine Rock, two miles north of here. Rock reports that one stalk of corn now measures 15 feet, four inches in height while hundreds of others are running close seconds for honors.

Insurance Men To Philadelphia Meet

Howard Johnson, general agent and Sam Lewis of the Providence Mutual Life Insurance Co., of New Castle left this morning for Philadelphia where they will attend the convention of the quarter million dollar production club which is being held in that place.

Both men were eligible to attend the convention due to the amount of their sales but Mr. Johnson being a general agent will not be included in the quarter million sessions which is for salesmen only.

Moody Institute Annual Bibical Conference Opens

(International News Service)

EAGLES MERE, Pa., Aug. 25.—The annual Bible conference, conducted under the auspices of the Moody Bible Institute of Chicago, opened here today at the Presbyterian church with several hundred ministers, laymen and church workers in attendance.

The conference will be directed by E. B. Buckalew of Harrisburg, and will continue until Sunday evening, Sept. 2.

Among the speakers who will address the conference during its session will be the noted Hollander known as "Pastor" Dolman; Professor Leander S. Keyser of the Lutheran divinity school at Springfield, O.; the Rev. S. Edward Long of Chicago, and the Rev. Harvey Farmer, a veteran of the missionary service in north Africa.

GARDNER

Miss Grace Eakin, one of the teachers at Oak street, called on old friends at Gardner on Wednesday evening.

Mrs. Richard Williams of Gardner was brought home from the New Castle hospital Thursday evening but is still quite ill.

Rev. S. A. Stamm of Shenango Stop and Mrs. Stamm went to the service at the county home last Sunday and called on friends at Gardner.

Alfred Thompson of Gardner, went to Dayton, O., recently and brought his uncle Alfred Bails a Civil War veteran to his home. Mr. Bails is 89 years of age.

Every person who had any connection with the McKee school is invited there next Saturday and enjoy a reunion. Dinner and supper and a program are promised.

Rev. Mr. Davis pastor of the Christian Missionary Alliance church at Moravia Stop accepted a call to the church at Ivona Pa. Mr. and Mrs. John Kirkwood of Gardner went in their car with the moving family to their new field of labor. Mrs. Davis and Mrs. Kirkwood are sisters.

Mrs. King of Pittsburgh, spent some time in Cleveland at the home of her son William and came to Shenango Stop to the home of her son J. J. King and family and after a pleasant sojourn there went to the home of her sister Mrs. Creefe in Beaver Falls. Mrs. King is 84 years of age but has excellent health.

His many friends will be pleased to learn that Rev. James Ellison who built one of the first houses in Gardner is now pastor of the Congregational church at Honor, Mich. His wife who was formerly Miss Marcia Ford of Jackson, Mich., is also an ordained minister and is a lady of fine education and much native ability.

Small Boys Destroy West Side Gardens

Small boys have been molesting the property of residents out on the west side, according to the statement of Alderman William E. Marshall this morning, especially the gardens of these people, and unless it is stopped at once, information will be made against the boys and the case taken up with their parents.

Mr. Marshall said that the boys, who are known, have been destroying gardens and plundering them. He dispatched several letters to parents of the lads and if the filching and destroying is stopped no charges will be made for damages already done by the boys.

Gas Company Must Lower Shut Offs

Manufacturers Light & Heat and New Castle Water companies will be notified by the city of New Castle to lower "shut-offs" between the sidewalk and curb in the city, according to action taken by councilmen today.

Councilman Reeves told colleagues there are one thousand "uprights" which may cause persons to stumble

A motion, directing the companies to lower the "shut-offs" was adopted.

ABE MARTIN On Being Misunderstood

KINDLY DISPOSED, BUT MISUNDERSTOOD

I sometimes think that friendly, polite, thoughtful, an' well meanin' people are t' be pitied because they meet with so many rebuffs in this ugly, snappy, abrupt age when most ever'buddy is suspicious an' ever on th' alert fer ulterior motives. So many folks are leary o' good people an' kind acts that it's really hazardous t' offer a helpin' hand. The lawabidin' citizen that plods along an' attends strictly t' his own affairs is quietly suspected o' usin' th' mails t' defraud, or up t' some questionable game, an' if he's full o' civic pride an' jumps int' ever'thing with his sleeves rolled up, he's suspected o' "gittin' his." Mild, soft-mannered, friendly gentlemen are suspected o' knowin' how t' crochet, an' so it goes. So many people go through life misunderstood. A peppy, good-natured girl is whispered about, while a quiet, inanimate girl'll "bear watchin'." A gracious, pop'lar woman's home is supposed t' be a mess, an' a lovin' homebody is regarded as queer. If a stranger accosts us with some friendly remark we immediately wish we'd left our money at home. If somebuddy sets down beside us on a bus seat, or a park bench, an' says, "Well, it begins t' look like this fall's campaign 'll finally settle down t' a big wet an' dry fight," we freeze up an' edge away. Some folks are just naturally friendly an' gabby, an' besides it does begin t' look like we'd have a big wet an' dry fight on our hands in spite of all th' campaign managers kin do. Th' people make th' issues. We're too quick t' resent what we call freshness, or buttin' in. Some women seem t' resent it if we offer 'em a bus seat. Others take th' seat, but refuse t' be drawn out on th' topics o' th' day, or ther telephone numbers. Also I noticed that th' homelier a woman is th' more apt she is t' turn up her nose at some little act o' gallantry, probably wishin' t' give th' impression that she's hard 't git regardless o' her face. It makes a fat woman ravin' mad t' hand her an' onion, or somethin' else that she's dropped. It's a wonder kindly disposed people don't give up, but I guess they jest grow callus like appendycitis operators. If a feller keeps th' back o' his neck from gittin' ragged, or gives a cigar away now an' then, he's supposed t' have his eye out fer office, an' if a public man carries a sack o' cornmeal home he's supposed t' be tryin' t' kid th' plain people, an' if a candidate fer office jokin'ly jumps on th' seat of a manure spreader he's abused immeasurably fer tryin' t' fool th' farmer. Look how poor President Coolidge wuz traduced fer neglectin' the affairs o' th' nation an' changin' his clothes an' bein' photergraphed on a load o' hay. President Coolidge is kind an' obligin', an' 'll put on anything that's handed t' him, an' camera men, who know him well thro' close association say he's jest naturally gracious. Poor Charley Levine, th' most misunderstood man o' th' day, jumped in his own plane bareheaded an' crossed th' Atlantic only t' be called a four-flusher. If a widower changes his collar an' gits his heels straightened he's accused o' forgittin' his wife already, an' widows, if they even smile or join a croquet foursome, or wear supporters they're immediately catalogued as bein' designin' an' shady.

Foster's Weather Forecast

WASHINGTON, Aug. 25.—Storm wave of severe intensity was expected to cross continent during week centering on August 23. Following this storm center, a decided drop in the average temperatures is expected to be general over the continent. During this storm period, precipitation will be general and above normal, but not so heavy as during first part of month. Killing frosts will only be expected in far north and in mountain country during this cool wave. August 20 to 26 was expected to be one of the hail hazard periods of the season in northern half of great central valleys and northeast, especially eastern part of sections 1 and 3. Storm wave of moderate force will cross continent during week centering on 28; this disturbance will cause below normal temperatures but not much precipitation. Following this storm center, a period of favorable harvesting weather will be expected in northern spring wheat, which should be taken every advantage of.

September Cropweather.

General average cropweather of North America for September, 1928, will be better than the ten-year average. Precipitation will increase during this month in central and western Canada east of Rockies, western cotton belt and western plains just east of Rockies, decrease in other areas: month will average a little below normal precipitation for the continent; most precipitation during period 4 to 11. First half of month stormy, especially during severe storm periods centering on 5 and 8; moderate storms centering on 14; mild storms centering on 22 and 30. Temperature extremes will be moderate except during period 4 to 11, when greater than usual September extremes will be expected. Warm wave centering on 5, cool wave centering on 12 with northern cold wave that will threaten northern country with killing frosts. Good harvest weather after 15. Temperatures for the month will average a little above normal.

During severe storm periods centering on September 5 and 8, I expect the formation of tropical storms; my calculations indicate they will not move toward North America. Should these calculations prove to be in error, as were those for first part of August, my general forecasts for this period would also be in error. Should southern storms move close to or strike our southeast coast during period September 4 to 11, temperatures of northwest would go considerably lower and southeast precipitation would be much heavier than indicated in my forecasts. Watch this period if you are interested in northwest killing frosts or cotton belt precipitation.

Moon phases occur as follows: Full August 31; last quarter September 6, new 14, first quarter 22, full 29, last quarter October 6.

TO CONSTRUCT SEWER

Council on Friday ordered the city solicitor to prepare an ordinance which will call for the construction of a sewer in Wilder avenue, between Ashland avenue and Liberty street.

Big business isn't so smart. U. S. Steel says it paid 111 million too much taxes in 1918. You and I wouldn't make an error like that.—The Rochester Times-Union.

North Mercer Street Paving Discussed

Councilman Clayton H. Reeves today told colleagues during a formal session of council that North Mercer street, between Grant street and Lincoln avenue should be paved.

He said that water washes the limestone out and that "something should be done by the city."

Councilman Davies asked Reeves: "Do the property owners want this paving?"

"Some do and some do not," replied Reeves.

"Find out if they will petition for the paving," said Davies.

"We cannot pave the street this year," said Burns.

"I know that but it is a necessity that the street be paved," replied Reeves.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 25.—Football scrimmages with Georgetown will form a conspicuous part of the fall training of the Temple University team, Georgetown advices received here disclosed, according to Graduate Manager Earl R. Yeomans of Temple.

Most of the scrimmages will be staged at the airport field at Atlantic City, where the owl squad will begin its two weeks of fall training on September 4. The Georgetown team leaves almost simultaneously for Wildwood, so that the training periods of both teams are practically the same.

Legion Members Start Balloting For New Leader

Colorful Parade In Uniontown Staged By Delegates Today

CONVENTION TO END TONIGHT

By BURL A. ELY
International News Service Staff Correspondent

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Aug. 25.—In parade dress 15,000 Pennsylvania Legionnaires turned out en masse today in a colorful array of trim and natty uniforms to make their final bow to the city of Uniontown, which for three days has been host to the 10th annual state convention of the Pennsylvania American Legion.

Thousands of visitors from all sections of the state made their way to Uniontown for this brilliant spectacle, while the Legion doughboys marshalled their forces preparatory to making a conquest of the city.

The pride of Pennsylvania's Legion bands were here, all of them seeking honors in band contests. At nine a. m. crack buglers and drummers assembled for an individual bugler contest. The remainder of the morning's activities included drill team contests at Elks Park and bugle and drum corps contests.

Seek State Leader

While the colorful parade attracted the attention of the city's estimated 50,000 visitors, the delegates settled down in convention hall for their last day's business. Interest centered in the struggle for the office of state commander.

During the closing hours of yesterday's session the names of three men were presented as candidates for the office. William "Bill" McNaugher of Allegheny county had strong and enthusiastic support, and each of the other candidates, Ray E. Taylor of Harrisburg and Charles A. Gebert of Tamaqua had strong followers.

Pre-convention sentiment among the doughboy politicians did not swing heavily toward any one candidate, but the concensus was that the biggest contest would center around McNaugher and Taylor.

Many delegates expected that western Pennsylvania would again entertain the Legion convention in 1929. Conneaut Lake Park, with strong backing of a number of western cities, was favored for next year's convention. Scranton, which at first was believed to have the best chance of getting next years' convention, failed to make a bid.

Not Conneaut Lake

The convention decided to refer to the executive committee the matter of selecting a city for the 1929 convention, but with instructions that it not be Conneaut Lake Park, which had hitherto been considered as the likely site.

Columnist Finds City Progressing

"New Castle is progressing. The city has wonderful prospects, and of all the places in Western Pennsylvania that I have been in so far, I like it the best.

These were the words of Charles F. Danver, Pittsburgh journalist and conductor of Pittsburgesque in the Post-Gazette this morning, after spending a day in the city.

Mr. Danver's strange odyessey into the hinterland originated a few weeks ago when he asked his managing editor that, instead of taking the customary vacation, he be sent to the smaller cities of Western Pennsylvania to record his impressions of them.

And so he came to New Castle, in search of those little side lights which make a city interesting, which make it a place in which one loves to live.

But, busting into a strange town, and staying there for only a day has its faults. One cannot see the real social soul of the city, says Mr. Danver, and if he applies to anyone, they wish to take him on a personally conducted tour of the industries.

Mr. Danver is not interested in the industries, particularly. He believes that men and women and children make far better "copy". He is interested in people. So in his column, which went to the Post-Gazette this morning, he included snap shots of New Castle—first impressions of a strange town. Then he wrote a short story on the North Hill, a story on a news boy who aspires to become a cartoonist, and a few more on interesting people about the city.

While in Pittsburgh, Mr. Danver, as followers of his column know, finds life in the rough in speak easies and needle beer joints. In New Castle, he finds a dearth of these.

Mr. Danver came to New Castle from Butler, and at noon today he went to Sharon, where he will visit with Larry Flint, and the rest of "the boys".

TWO FALSE ALARMS.

Two false alarms called the city firemen to boxes 83 and 49 at 3 o'clock this morning. It is stated that some one in an automobile drove up to the boxes, pulled the alarm and then drove off.

This practice is absolutely forbidden by law and if the offenders are caught they will be given the maximum sentence was the comment of Claire Stockman assistant chief this morning. It calls companies out of service in the districts they are to protect and should be stopped.

Ambridge Man Is Arrested, Charged With Wild Gunplay

Tear Gas Bombs Fail To Rout Violator, So Police Batter Down Door

(International News Service)

AMBRIDGE, Pa., Aug. 25. — When tear gas, pumped through a key-hole, failed to rout out James Howard, 35, from his room here today, police battered down the door and arrested him.

A short time before an automobile belonging to J. C. Christian, of Beaver, and parked in front of Howard's house, was riddled with bullets, and police sought to question Howard.

He denied shooting at Christian's car, police said, but they found a .38 calibre revolver in his room. Both .33 and .32 calibre bullets perforated the automobile, but police could find no .32 calibre weapon in Howard's place.

No charge has been placed against Howard, pending investigation of his story that he was asleep and knew nothing of the shooting.

Officers Arrest Four Hi-Jackers

Group Of Hi-Jackers Believed Plotting Slaying Nabbed In Philadelphia

(International News Service)

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 25.—The two-year old feud between the self confessed king of bootleggers of Philadelphia, suburban sections and a group of hi-jackers who threatened him with death, led to the arrest of four men here early today when police caught them in a trap.

The intended victim of gangdom is Gustave Schaeffer, 46, of Drexel Hill, who last April was accused by Calvin E. James, Upper Darby salesman, of slaying William Harold Dunstan, Doylestown, father of two small children. Schaeffer was freed when James confessed to the murder and the slaying of two uncles of his wife, after intense grilling. James was sentenced to death and is now in the Bucks county jail at Doylestown awaiting hearing of his appeal for a new trial.

Those arrested as Schaeffer's enemies gave their names as Jack Lewis, alias Jack Tonice, 28, Murray Vanning, alias Werner, 27, Joe Marks, alias Miller, 27, and George Fauffman, alias Eddie Dee, Warren Boyle and William Sweeney, 39, all of Philadelphia. They will be arraigned today before Magistrate E. J. Pennock.

Kellogg Spends Quiet Day, Guest Of Ambassador

(International News Service)

PARIS, Aug. 25.—Secretary of State Kellogg spent a quiet day with Ambassador Herrick and his son, Parmelee Herrick, making only one public appearance, when he motored to the Arc De Triomph to place a wreath on the tomb of the French unknown soldier. Tonight he will be the guest of honor at a dinner to be given at the embassy by the ambassador. The guests will include a number of the diplomates who have arrived here for the signing of the anti-war treaty on Monday.

In commemoration of the treaty signing, Robert Underwood Johnson, the American poet, today published a "Hymn for a pact of peace," expressing the hope that the pact would accomplish its purpose of ending war and bringing peace to the world.

West For Hoover, Declares Fisher

Pennsylvania Governor Bases Statements On Enthusiasm Shown In West

(International News Service)

FOGELSVILLE, Pa., Aug. 25.—"The west is thoroughly and genuinely for the Hoover-Curtis ticket," Governor John S. Fisher declared today at the Republican rally here in referring to the political aspects of his recent journey to Palo Alto, California, for the Hoover notification ceremony.

"The voting men and women in the open spaces are marshaling behind our standard bearers," the governor said. "False issues will not swerve them from their course. They know their needs and look confidentally to Hoover and Curtis to fulfill them."

The governor said he based his statements on manifestations of enthusiasm and interest in the great food producing states during his journey across the continent. He added that "their actions carried conviction and inspired confidence" in the outcome of the fall elections.

Declaring that a "great wave of sentiment is rolling and the Republican party in the western states unprecedented harmony within its ranks," the governor called upon Pennsylvania Republicans to rally around the national and state tickets so that "our laurels as the banner Republican state of the union may be maintained."

"Pennsylvania Republicanism has never faltered in a presidential year and I am sure it will rally to the call to arms in November," Governor Fisher concluded.

To Hold Reception In Church Manse

Members and guests of the Westfield Presbyterian church which is observing its 125th anniversary this week are cordially invited to the informal anniversary reception which the pastor and his wife, Rev. and Mrs. Ross M. Haverfield will give at the manse tonight.

The reception will commence at 7 p. m. and will continue until 10:30 o'clock.

May Start Probe In Philadelphia Over Rum Warfare

(International News Service)

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 25.—Possibility of a federal probe of the warfare over the illicit liquor traffic here loomed today as the grand jury continued its probe into the recent gang slayings.

The federal grand jury has been summoned for September 5 when nearly 300 liquor cases will be heard and District Attorney John Monaghan in charge of the gang probe is reported to have conferred with federal prohibition officials and the U. S. district attorney's office thus giving credence to the reports that the federal jury also will be asked to probe criminal conditions here alleged to have grown out of the liquor traffic.

While the probe continued today detectives turned their attention towards an investigation of the body of a man, believed to be another gang victim, found late yesterday in South Philadelphia. The man had been dead for months.

Argument Is Fatal To Farrell Negro

(International News Service)

FARRELL, Pa., Aug. 25.—Argument over possession of a can of sardines ended fatally for Ray Smith, 35, colored early today when he was struck on the head by an iron pump handle by William Bidding, also colored, of Sharon. Smith suffered a fractured skull and died shortly afterward.

Biddings was held for court without bail, and was removed to Mercer jail to await trial.

Bridge Weakens, Traffic Detours

(International News Service)

SHARON, Pa., Aug. 25. — The Yankee Run bridge, on the Sharon-Brookfield road was closed today as the result of damage done by a heavy truck. The bridge sank almost a foot below the level of the road when the truck passed over it. A detour through Masury to Prices Corners and then to the Hubbard-Brookfield road is necessary.

DANCE 28 DAYS TO WORLD'S RECORD

Charlie Jacobs, Minneapolis, Minn., newsboy, and his partner, Mrs. E. Cederstrom, also of Minneapolis, are claiming the world's dance marathon championship after winning the All-Minnesota marathon, held in St. Paul. They danced 679 hours and 14 minutes for $1,279, while Mrs. Cederstrom frequently slapped her partner to keep him awake. Entries were required to dance 45 minutes of every hour, with 15 minute rest periods.

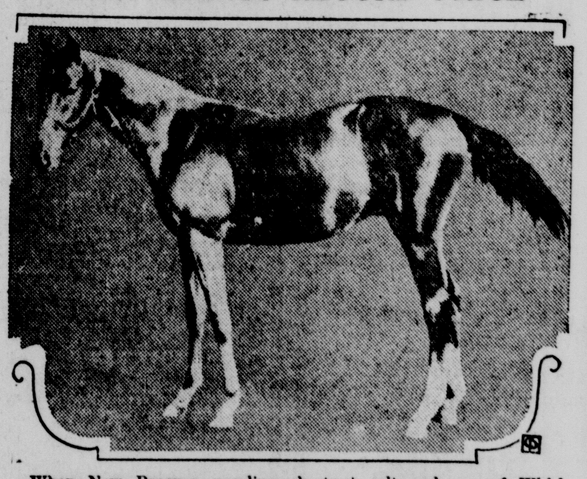
GIRL DANCES BOSS OUT OF $730

Miss Weltha Moye, 18-year-old Evansville, Ind., marathon dancer, virtually danced her employer out of $730, and it would have been more if she hadn't had to drop out of a marathon dancing contest because of temporary paralysis of her legs. When Weltha entered the contest her employer jokingly promised her $5 for every hour she danced over 50. Weltha lasted 196 hours. Miss Frances Winters, also 18, her companion, is shown resting after the dance and recovering from an attack of extreme nervousness.

SOPHIE'S EMILY WINS COW CROWN

Sophie's Emily of Randleigh Farm of Lockport, N. Y., is the world's new long distance champion Jersey cow in butter fat production. In eight consecutive 365-day tests she has produced a total of 124,487 pounds of milk from which 6,263 pounds of butter fat, or the equivalent of 7,369 pounds of butter, has been produced. She is owned by William R. Kenan, Jr.

COLT BRINGS RECORD PRICE



When New Brooms, yearling chestnut colt and son of Whisk Broom II, was recently sold by Mrs. T. J. Regan to C. V. B. Cushman, of Pomfret Centre, Conn., he brought what is claimed to be the world's record price for a colt—$75,000.

ITALY'S FLAG AT THE NORTH POLE

BRIDE'S IRATE DAD BEATS JUDGE

Enraged because Probate Judge George W. Folmer performed a marriage ceremony for the 15-year-old daughter of E. A. Conn, of Olathe, Kas., Conn "beat up" the judge, according to charges on which the father was jailed. Folmer, whose bruised features are shown in inset, has only one arm. Mr. and Mrs. William Mashburn, the young couple whose marriage caused the rumpus, also are shown.

East Brook Barn Razed By Early Morning Fire

Hay, Grain And Stock Destroyed When Barn Of Alec Young Burns

Fire of unknown origin this morning destroyed the large barn at the farm of Alec Young, located just this side of East Brook on the New Castle-East Brook improved road.

Some of the contents of the structure are reported to have been consumed, including chickens, horse and several head of cattle. Hay and oats in the barn also was destroyed.

Damage to the structure and the contents has not yet been estimated, but it is said that the loss is considerable.

The fire commenced at 2:5[illegible] a. m. today and made such a quick start that it was impossible to check its progress. No efforts were made to save the building, although several attempts were made to rid the barn of its valuable contents.

Senator Edwards Praises Stand Of Governor Smith

New Jersey Senator Criticizes Hoover's Stand On Prohibition Issue

(International News Service)

SEA GIRT, N. J., Aug. 25.—Sharply criticizing Herbert Hoover's stand on prohibition and warmly praising the candor of Governor Al Smith, who pledged himself to enforcement of the Volstead act but frankly expressed himself as favoring modification, United States Senator Edward I. Edwards today challenged expenditure of "some $500,000,000" in eight years by the Republican administration to investigate prohibition.

"Prohibition is not meeting the demands of temperance and Governnor Smith frankly tells you so. Corruption, fraud and deceit have robbed Volsteadism of every vestige of decency," Edwards declares in his statement.

"Mr. Hoover declared prohibition to be a noble experience and in the next breath charged that grave abuses have grown up under it but he steadfastly refused to recommend a remedy. He recommends another 'snopping' commission to investigate."

Jacqueline Logan Forbidden To Live With Her Husband

(International News Service)

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Aug. 25.—The honeymoon of Jacqueline Logan, film actress, who was married to Larry Winston, Los Angeles broker, at Agua Caliente, Mexico, recently, will come to a peculiar termination Monday when she resumes her picture work here.

Inasmuch as her final decree of divorce from her first husband does not become final until next March, Miss Logan and her husband will part at the international boundry line. If they live together as man and wife in California before Miss Logan's decree becomes final, authorities said she would be liable to prosecution on bigamy charges.

"Hip-Tapping" Is Again Practiced By Federal Agents

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, Aug. 25.—For the second time within a week federal customs agents staged a spectacular "hip-tapping' raid on the French line pier early today.

Friends who had just bid good-bye to passengers on the liner were stopped at the exit of the pier as they departed for homes. Seven agents, four of them negroes, slapped the hip pockets of the men and searched the handbags of the women. The agents made a similar drive when the liner Paris sailed a week ago. At that time they obtained 64 bottles of liquor it was said, but today they found no intoxicants.

Three Negroes Die In Brooklyn Fire

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, Aug. 25.—Frank Harper, 40, a negro, his wife, Nannie, and his niece, Emily Little, died two hours after being overcome by smoke at a fire in Brooklyn early today. Firemen and police used twenty pints of oxygen in a gain effort to revive the victims.

Woman Is Killed; Falls Down Stairs

(International News Service)

ALTOONA, Pa., Aug. 25—Mrs. Mary A. Hoover, of Hollidaysburg, was killed early today when she fell down a flight of steps at her home, suffering a fracture of the neck. The lifeless body was found at the bottom of the stairway when members of the family awoke this morning.

Pupils Not Attending North Street Junior High School Last Year Must Enroll

Announcement was made this morning from the office of the George Washington junior high school that all children planning to attend at that building this coming year who were not enrolled at the North street junior high school last year will come to the office of the new junior high on Euclid avenue some morning of this next week and register.

As there is no way except by a rough estimate of determining the number of students, this registration of the pupils is absolutely necessary. The office at the George Washington building will be open from 9 o'clock in the morning until 5 o'clock in the evening for the registration of these pupils.

Those who attended the junior high school at North street last year have their names already on file, state school authorities, and there is no need for their registration.

Every junior high student other than last year's North street students who are still in that classification of school must come to the building some day next week and enroll.

School authorities are expecting in the region of 1200 students at the new school but no exact knowledge of the number can be ascertained until the registration is completed next week.

"Chute" Jumper Sets New Mark

Jack Cope, Veteran Parachute Jumper Drops 3,400 Feet Into Space

(International News Service)

CHICAGO, Aug. 25.—Jack Cope, veteran aviator, today boasted a new world's record in "parachuting" from an airplane.

Cope stepped into space from an airplane cabin door 10,000 feet over Ashburne flying field here. He dropped 3,400 feet before opening his parachute.

His plummet-like drop lasted 13½ seconds, and covered a vertical distance equivalent to five Woolworth towers one on top of the other. He landed safely amid a foursome of golfers.

The previous "sheer drop" record was held by Sergt. Boes, army aeronaut, who claimed to have fallen 2,200 feet before opening his parachute.

Cope admitted he had not intended to fall so far.

"It was my intention to count 20 before I yanked the cord," he said. "But I became confused and counted up to 28 before I pulled."

NEW REGULATION ON NORTH HILL

The new regulation relative to parking on the east side of North Mill street from Washington street to a point 125 north of Washington street is now effective.

It prohibits parking in that zone and the result has been very satisfactory, because of the fact that it is preventing numerous accidents often caused between cars parked at this point and those making right hand turns from Washington street onto North Mill street.

It is also making it possible for delivery trucks to get into that zone and make deliveries, which was often impossible when cars were allowed to park there.

K. Of C. Outing At Cascade Park Next Wednesday

Local St. Mary's Council Hosts To Knights Of Columbus Of Neighboring Cities

THOUSANDS EXPECTED AT ANNUAL OUTING

New Castle, Butler, Youngstown and the Beaver Valley towns will be represented here next Wednesday, August 29 at the annual outing of the St. Mary's Council, number 512, of the Knights of Columbus at Cascade Park.

A huge delegation from these neighboring towns is expected according to the statement of officers of the local chapter. Although the outing is under the auspices of the St. Mary's Council, an invitation has been extended to the neighboring cities to attend.

All Day Program

The activities of the day will begin in the morning and will continue until night. A picnic dinner will be served in the grounds to the members and their visitors and friends. While the dancing pavilion will be reserved and under the direction of the St. Mary's council during the afternoon. Rides and amusements will be free to the kiddies.

Shortly after the picnic dinner at noon, a range of sports will fill the bill for the afternoon's program. Following which, will be a baseball game between the married and single men of the local chapter of the Knights of Columbus.

A number of prizes are being offered by the local order for various events among which is a special prize to the man present who has been in the local order the longest.

A huge delegation from the nearby towns is expected according to statements of the officials. Many acceptances to the invitations sent out have returned and all indications are that the crowd will not be at all small.

Griffith in Charge

In charge of the arrangements of the day is Stephen Griffith, lecturer of the Knights of Columbus, who is being aided by a score of able assistants.

According to his statement, the plans are complete as far as the committee is concerned and everything is in readiness for the approaching day of the outing. Tables have been arranged for and coffee will be there for the picnickers.

Church Baseball Managers Meet

At the meeting of the board of managers of the church baseball league last night at the Y. M. C. A. action was taken on the games that had to be postponed on account of rain and other reasons and also the protests.

A schedule of the agmes that have to be played again is being drawn up and will be published in the Monday evening edition of The News.

Pennsy Athletes At Pitcairn Meet

E. & A. Division Team Leaves This Morning With Splendid Array Of Talent

Representatives of the Erie and Ashtabula division of the Pennsylvania Railroad are in Pitcairn today competing against four other divisions of the company for the supreme championship of the Pennsylvania's central region.

New Castle is well represented on the different teams, and the Erie and Ashtabula band, composed entirely of local men, is also making the trip.

Athletes from the road's general office, the northern division which is located around Buffalo, the lake division, and from parts in Western Pennsylvania and Eastern Ohio are expected to participate in the annual contest, which ordinarily draws around 3,000 people to that city.

D. D. Potter, of the local divisional headquarters, accompanied the local fellows to Pitcairn. P. A. Rasmus, an Ohio State university student, but who is employed in his spare time by the local division, is entered in the javelin throw and shot put events. Rasmus was one of the entrants in the Olympic try outs.

The divisions half mile relay team, headed by John Shields, former New Castle High school runner, and composed of Sylvester Domenick, Frank Palumbo, Jeff F. Huff, Jr., and Howard Cumbertson, is entered. Harold Patton is entered in the hop, skip and jump event and Frank Jerry, a marathon runner, in the mile run.

The E. and A. section also sent its gun club, composed of E. M. Fisher, C. N. Sheppard, L. L. Wilkinson, M. T. Stone, George W. Schmidt, F. L. Henry, J. A. Harmer, A. L. Davies, W. B. Gillespie and E. D. McCowan.

It is expected that the division will place in all of the events and probably come out first in several.

Telephone Picnic At Beach Today

Almost 200 employes of the plant department, New Castle district of the Bell Telephone Co., of Pennsylvania this afternoon are at Lakewood Beach where they are enjoying the annual picnic planned and executed by the employes of the department from New Castle, Sharon, Rochester and Beaver Falls.

The afternoon is being spent in sports and games, while the picnic supper will be served at 6 o'clock. In the evening there will be dancing.

Our idea of the last word in unessential effort would be for New York to throw one of those expensive welcomes for Jimmie Walker on one of his numerous returns.

Playgrounds Close Today

The entire five playgrounds of the city were brought to an official close at noon today, after a summer of unprecedented success. No great displays marked the end of the season today as the official program was held for the children at Gaston park on last Wednesday.

The amusement centers closing today were the Croton, West Side, McCleary avenue, Franklin and Gaston park grounds.

Smith Launches Active Campaign For Presidency

Governor Smith To Review National Guards Of New Jersey At Seagirt Today

FIRST ACTIVE SHOT IN FALL CAMPAIGN

Big Demonstration Greets Democratic Candidate In Week-End Vacation

By RAYMOND I. BORST,
International News Service Staff Correspondent

SPRING LAKE, N. J., Aug. 25.—Governor Al Smith's active campaign for the White House appeared to be in full swing here today.

Elated by the enthusiastic receptions accorded him in his first appearance outside New York state since he formally accepted the presidential nomination, the Democratic nominee was to review the New Jersey National Guard troops at Seagirt this afternoon in the presence of a crowd which Democratic leaders predicted would exceed 100,000.

Big Demonstration

Although Smith came to New Jersey ostensibly to review the National guardsmen and to enjoy a weekend rest, in reality he has formally launched his active campaign for the presidency. He said he did not come here to make a speech but the Democratic leaders of New Jersey have prepared such a demonstration for him at today's review that they do not believe he will be able to resist the temptation to discuss campaign issues.

Roaming Round With Richards

Some News, Some Views, But Mostly Just Observations Of Interesting Things Around New Castle

Like the rain which is alleged to fall upon the just and unjust with the same degree of impartiality, jury service gets everybody. Like chicken pox, love and wisdom teeth everybody gets a taste of it, and if you miss it when you're young, the probabilities are that old age will find you compensated.

Operative X148, working out of the Secret Service Bureau of this colyum reports today that Dan Reeble is also drawn for the district court jury in Erie next month, all of which proves that if misery loves company, it's a long lane that has no roadhouse.

This is the day that Commander Richard E. Byrd, stalwart son of Virginia, starts his first ship out towards Antarctic, towards the quest of the South Pole, towards that desolate land of ice that cost Shackleton his life.

All the world is hoping for Byrd's success and particularly is every American "rooting" for him. No finer figure has flashed across the screen of American pioneers than Dick Byrd. Colorful, courageous and withal modest and unassuming he has blazed the name of America across the top of the world, over the vastness of the Atlantic Ocean and now proposes to cross the South Pole by air.

It is a quest that challenges the imagination, fires the spark of adventure, and demonstrates conclusively that the old spirit of the American pioneer still lives.

As you might expect Byrd comes from a quiet little town. Winchester, Virginia, is his home and you who have travelled the Shenandoah Valley know the place. Old fashioned Virginian homes line the streets, folks go about their affairs in that inimitable southern slowness, and yet out of the sleepy little town has come an adventurer of world renown, a man whose name will rank with Magellan, Vasco de Gama, La Salle, Columbus, Balboa and Peary.

Workman Finds Body Of Girl Stuffed In Culvert; May Be Missing Milwaukee Girl

(International News Service)

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Aug. 25. — In the belief that the body of the bobbed haired girl found stuffed in a culvert at Elkhorn, Wis., near here, is the 14-year-old abducted daughter of Mrs. Gizella Karkas of Milwaukee, the body will be exhumed from potter's field today.

Mrs. Farkas, who arrived at Elkhorn this morning was so confident that the dead girl is her daughter that Dr. E. T. Ridgway, mayor of Elkhorn, ordered a thorough re-examination of the remains. Mrs. Farkas partially identified the chemise, the only garment on the body.

The body was discovered late on Thursday by a highway workman. It had lain in the culvert apparently three or four weeks.

POLICE HEAR OF ABANDONED CAR

Police were advised Friday afternoon that there was a car bearing Pennsylvania license C 46-016 which is listed in the name of William Stanton 217 Center street, Franklin, Pa., in the vicinity of a barbecue about six miles from the city on the Youngstown road which had been abandoned there the night before. It was thought to be a stolen car. The report was turned over to Sheriff H. M. Reynolds for investigation.

Both candidates being scornful of faked pictures, the White House lawn can again be used for sheep.

Union Miners In Ohio Will Return To Work Shortly

Operators And Miners Come To Agreement On Wage Scale ,Ending Bitter Feud

ESTIMATE 3,500 ARE AFFECTED

(International News Service)

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 25.—Signalizing the end of the long-drawn out and bitterly contested struggle between bituminous coal miners and operators, a formal wage agreement was on record here Friday between the Central Ohio Coal operators, and Union miners. The operators control 14 individual coal mines.

Five days of Star Chamber conferences attended by representatives of both ended here late Thursday with the announcement that a new scale would be put in effect September 1, calling for $5 per day and 70 cents per ton for cutting and loading.

Both sides expressed themselves as not wholly satisfied with the scale but said concessions were made "to bring peace to the industry".

About 14 mines employing approximately 3500 men, a proportionately small number, are affected by the agreement, but many other Ohio operators will fall in line according to the belief voiced by union officials.

Willard Council To Have Meeting

Willard Council, Daughters of America will hold an open meeting in McGoun hall this evening at 8:30. State and national officers will be present.

The meeting will be held in conjunction with the Junior Order of Mechanics. An effort will be made to revive this council to its former standing of a few years ago when the membership almost reached four hundred.

A social time will be enjoyed following the business meeting. Members and friends are invited to attend the meeting to be held in the D. of A. hall, East Washington street at 7:30.

CHAMBERSBURG, Pa., Aug. 25.—Weddings are few and very far between in the Emanuel Episcopal church at Mount Alto, near here.

The first wedding that has been solemnized in the church since 1864 was the recent marriage of Miss Kathleen Rhine and Harvey A. Foor, both of Cleveland, by the Rev. A. A. Hughes.

Mercer To Have Class A Airport

Believed It Will Be Stop On Proposed New York-Cleveland Line

MERCER, Pa., Aug. 25.—The aviation field here will be made a class A field at once, is the announcement of workmen of the department of commerce who are here enlarging the field to permit of the landing of transcontinental planes.

The field, located on the farm of J. B. Tait, is one of the emergency landing fields between New York and Cleveland on the air mail line. To the original 50 acres is being added 20 more from the farms of John Bentley and the John Sargeant heirs. Landing lights are being placed at closer intervals about this enlarged field, which is also being graded.

The tower light for landmarks of night flying and night landing is being heightened to 50 feet. This will make Mercer a big division point on the line . It is stated by the workmen that the field is one of the best for aviation purposes between New York and Cleveland.

Should a passenger line fly this course as now whispered, Mercer will assume an important role.

Escaped Youth Is Back In Custody

Youth Who Fled When Being Taken To Reform School Is Captured After Auto Crash

(International News Service)

SELINSGROVE, Pa., Aug. 25.—Alex Bondizo, 17, of Wilkes-Barre, who escaped last Tuesday by leaping from a train while he was being taken to the Huntingdon reformatory, was captured here Friday when an automobile he had stolen from a farm near here crashed into a truck.

Bondizo, who was handcuffed when he made his leap to freedom, had succeeded in freeing his right hand. E. J. Jordan reported to Sheriff C. J. Runkle at Sunbury that his car had been stolen from a barn on his farm by a youth answering the description of Bondizo.

The youth was driving through here when a red light halted traffic and he swerved the car in an apparent attempt to turn into a side street. The machine struck a truck and then hit a pole. When officers investigated the wreck they found the handcuffs dangling from Bondizo's left wrist. He was later identified by police and the wrecked car was turned over to Jordan.

Vocational School Has Large Class

Almost 150 Will Attend Fredonia Vocational School, Says Head

MERCER, Pa., Aug. 25.—Indications point to the largest attendance in history at the Fredonia vocational school for this fall, reports the school head, Professor F. A. Fruit.

From the town of Fredonia and of Delaware and Fairview townships have been recruited a freshman class of 55 which, with the enrolled attendance of upper classmen, makes a total of 145 expected. This breaks all records, it is reported, for this school.

The school is the only one of its kind in the county. Located in the center of a rich farming community its practical instruction in home economics and agriculture is resulting in return of boys and girls to the farm.

Post Cards From Europe

by William Ivy

PARIS, Aug. 25.—Popular as he is in England, in the Dominions, and even in the United States, the present Prince of Wales has never caught on very well in France.

He is a frequent visitor to Paris, as well as to different resorts. But it is noticed that he invariably travels incognito, is rarely seen at public functions, and for the most part confines himself pretty closely to the English colonies that are sprinkled here and there in Paris and other parts of France. His favorite resorts are Le Touquet, Pau, Biarritz and Cannes, in all of which society is led by the British.

Some days ago the Prince consented to attend an official dinner given by the Prefect of the North department, and the occasion furnished, perhaps, a key to the lack of enthusiasm that the French feel toward the heir to the British throne. When arrangements for the dinner were being made, the Prince's aide informed the Prefect that the Prince never drank anything with meals except whiskey-and-soda, and furthermore intimated that etiquette required all the other guests to do likewise.

Nothing could seem more horrible to the French than a dinner without wine, and while they might tolerate beer or cider—particularly in the North—the notion of drinking whiskey is simply unthinkable. It is not recorded how the guests made out on this occasion, or whether the good Prefect really did follow the royal etiquette that was suggested to him.

Albert Edward's grandfather, Edward VII, was immensely popular in France when he was Prince of Wales. He had scores of cronies in French society, and was an ardent admirer of French cuisine and particularly French wines. His son, the present King, did not have the same tastes, however, and the young Prince of today appears to take after his father more than his grandfather, in gustatory matters.

Orville Potter To Attend Convention

School Building Almost Completed

Grove City School Will Be Ready For Opening On September 4

GROVE CITY, Aug. 25.—The inside work of the new school in the east end of town has been practically completed and the contract for the grading of the lawn has been let. The work of grading will be started next week and will be completed within a few days.

As soon as this is done the building will be ready to receive the pupils from the east side at the opening of the term on September 4.

Evangelist Schmidt Speaks In Cleveland

To Give Away Bibles And Speak On Public Square Of That City

L. Schmidt, who conducts the Castle Hill Mission on Vine street in the Croton district, who with his daughter Esther is now engaged in a 10-day tour during which they stop at various points and give away Bibles and address gatherings of people, will on Sunday afternoon speak at a mass meeting on the public square in Cleveland. Mr. Schmidt will be assisted by his daughter. They will also distribute Bibles at the same time and place.

They are planning to return here and reopen the Castle Hill Mission on Tuesday of next week. They have been having great success in their meetings, which were in the nature of a vacation from the work of the mission here.

You Have An Ally Against Misfortune If You Pay Your Bills Promptly

If misfortune should come knocking at your door tomorrow, how would your creditors treat you? Would they press you; or could you go to them, explain matters and ask them to wait for their money until the skies cleared up a bit?

You can answer this question yourself.

If you have been in the habit of paying him promptly, any creditor would greet you as a friend and treat you fairly. He would wait patiently, because he would know you had played fairly with him.

A good credit record is a great asset. It will serve you well in stormy weather.

Exquisite Party Given At Haines For Visitors

One Of The Lovliest Parties Of The Season, Honors Michigan Visitors

ELLWOOD CITY, Aug. 25.—Honoring Mrs. Franklin Long, Mrs. Grace Grant, Miss Harriet Grant and Miss Margaret Long who are visiting here from Marshal, Mich., Mrs. T. L. Haines and Mrs. Rolland Haines were associate hostesses at the Haines home on Park avenue Friday afternoon at a 1 o'clock luncheon.

Exquisite is the only adequate word to be applied to the function which was carried out from beginning to end in the dainty pastel shades of sweet peas, asters, snapdragons and roses.

Covers were laid for 72 and each guests place was marked with individual nut baskets in the pastel colors with a sweet pea growing realistically at the back bearing the place card. The tables were centered with sweet peas and asters.

Acting as aides to the hostesses were Mrs. Bruce Hunter, Mrs. Ralph Evans, Mrs. Herb Davis, Mrs. Burton Bell, Miss Claire Smith, Miss Ethel Calvert and Miss Ruth Haines.

Before the completion of the menu the honor guests who were seated at a large table centered with asters, roses and double zenias on queens lace, surmounted by gleaming tapers, were presented with lovely corsage bouquets of roses and sweet peas and each of the guests received a nosegay of the same flowers.

Later 15 tables of bridge were in play and the score pads and tallies and pencils carried out the sweet pea motif in delicate colors. At the conclusion of the games the score honors went to Mrs. Frank Moltrup of Beaver Falls, Mrs. Carl Hayes and Mrs. William Pugh. Cut prizes were drawn by Mrs. Leo Mason and Mrs. Ray Aylesworth.

The guest list comprised Mesdames Franklin H. Long, Grace Grant, Miss Margaret Long, Miss Harriet Grant, the Mesdames Howell Jenkins, Theodore Markwort, B. M. Lawther, Burton Bell, John Dunn Jr., Bruce Hunter, Harold Seidel, Ray Klinger, E. C. No. 11.
A JOINT RESOLUTION

Proposing an amendment to article nine, section eight of the Constitution of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

Section 1. Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in General Assembly met, and it is hereby enacted by the authority of the same. That the following amendment to the Constitution of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania be, and the same is hereby proposed in accordance with the eighteenth article thereof:

That article nine, section eight of the Constitution of Pennsylvania is hereby amended to read as follows:

Section 8. The debt of any city, borough, township, school district, or other municipality or incorporated district, except as provided herein and in section fifteen of this article, shall never exceed seven (7) per centum upon the assessed value of the taxable property therein, and the debt of any county except as provided in section fifteen of this article shall never exceed ten (10) per centum upon the assessed value of the taxable realty therein: but the debt of the City of Philadelphia may be increased in such amount that the total city debt of said city shall not exceed fourteen (14) per centum upon the assessed value of the taxable realty therein; nor shall any such county, municipality, or district incur any new debt or increase its indebtedness to an amount exceeding two (2) per centum upon such assessed valuation of taxable realty in the case of counties, or taxable property in the case of other municipalities or districts, without the consent of the electors thereof at a public election in such manner as shall be provided by law; but the City of Philadelphia may incur any debt or increase its indebtedness to an amount not exceeding three per centum of the valuation of taxable realty in said city without the consent of the electors. In ascertaining the borrowing capacity of the City of Philadelphia at any time, there shall be deducted from such debt so much of the debt of said city as shall have been incurred or is about to be incurred and the proceeds thereof expended or about to be expended upon any public improvement, or in the construction, purchase or condemnation of any public utility or part thereof or facility therefor to the extent that such public improvement or public utility or part thereof, whether separately or in connection with any other public improvement or public utility or part thereof, may yield or may reasonably be expected to yield revenue in excess of operating expenses for or toward the payment of the interest and sinking fund charges thereon. The method of determining such amount so to be deducted shall be prescribed by the General Assembly.

In incuring indebtedness for any purpose the City of Philadelphia may issue its obligations, maturing not later than fifty (50) years from the date thereof, with provision for a sinking fund sufficient to retire said obligations at maturity. The payment to such sinking fund to be in equal or graded, annual, or other periodical instalments. Where any indebtedness shall be or shall have been incurred by said City of Philadelphia for the purpose of the construction or improvements of public works or utilities of any character from which income or revenue is to be derived by said city, or for the reclamation of land to be used in the construction of wharves or docks owned or to be owned by said city, such obligations may be in an amount sufficient to provide for and may include the amount of the interest and sinking fund charges accruing and which may accrue thereon throughout the period of construction and until the expiration of one year after the completion of the work for which said indebtedness shall have been incurred, and said city shall not be required to levy a tax to pay said interest and sinking fund charges as required by section ten, article nine of the Constitution of Pennsylvania until the expiration of said period of one year after the completion of said work.

A JOINT RESOLUTION

Proposing an amendment to article eight, section seven, of the Constitution of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

Section 1. Be it resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in General Assembly met, That the following amendment to the Constitution of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania be, and the same is hereby proposed in accordance with the eighteenth article thereof:

That section seven, of article eight, is hereby amended to read as follows:

Section 7. All laws regulating the holding of elections by the citizens, or for the registration of electors, shall be uniform throughout the State, except that laws regulating and requiring the registration of electors may be enacted to apply to cities only, provided that such laws be uniform for cities of the same class, and except further, that the General Assembly shall, by general law, permit the use of voting machines, or other mechanical devices for registering or recording and computing the vote, at all elections or primaries, in any county, city, borough or township of the Commonwealth, at the option of the electors of such county, city, borough or township, without being obliged to require the use of such voting machines or mechanical devices in any other county, city, borough or township, under such regulations with reference thereto as the General Assembly may from time to time, prescribe. The General Assembly may, from time to time, prescribe the number and duties of election officers in any political sub-division of the Commonwealth in which voting machines or other mechanical devices authorized by this section may be used.

No. 14.
A JOINT RESOLUTION

Proposing an amendment to article fifteen of the Constitution of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, by adding thereto a new section to be known as section four thereof.

Section 1. Be it resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in General Assembly met, That the following amendment to the Constitution of Pennsylvania be, and the same is hereby proposed in accordance with the eighteenth article thereof:

Section 4. The General Assembly is hereby authorized to provide for the consolidation of the county, poor districts, cities, boroughs and townships of the county of Allegheny, and the offices thereof, into a consolidated city and county, with the constitutional and legal capacity of a municipal corporation, to be known as the City of Pittsburgh, and to provide for a charter for its government. The said charter shall be submitted to the electors of said county at a special election to be provided for therein. If the majority of the electors voting thereon, in the county as a whole, and at least two-thirds of all the electors voting thereon in each of a majority of the cities, boroughs and townships thereof, vote in the affirmative, the act shall take effect for the whole county. If rejected, the said charter may be resubmitted to the electors in original, new or modified form, at any subsequent election until adopted.

It shall be competent, subject to the police power of the State, for the Legislature to provide in said charter:

1. For the exercise, by the consolidated city, of all the powers and duties vested in the county of Allegheny, and the poor districts thereof, and such other powers appropriate to a municipality as may be specifically conferred upon it by the charter, except such powers as are specifically reserved by this section to the municipal divisions herein provided for.

2. For the election, by the people of the consolidated city, of a board of commissioners, the number to be fixed by the charter, in lieu of present county commissioners, in which board shall be vested all the powers of the consolidated city and county, except as otherwise provided in the charter.

3. For the organization of a government for the consolidated city and county, and for the election or appointment of the constitutional and other necessary officers thereof, and for their powers and duties.

4. For the organization of all courts, other than those of record in the consolidated city, and for the procedure thereof, and for the appointment of judges and officers thereof, which courts shall exercise the jurisdiction, powers and duties of the magistrates, aldermen and justices of the peace, and such other powers as may be conferred by law.

5. For the transfer to the consolidated city of the property and indebtedness of the county of Allegheny, and the poor districts thereof, and of such property and indebtedness of the cities, boroughs and townships thereof as relate to the powers and duties of said consolidated city, and to provide for an equitable adjustment and payment of such indebtedness, and for this purpose, any taxation therein shall be uniform taxation within the meaning and intent of other provisions of this Constitution.

6. For the assessment of property for taxation, the levying and collection of taxes, and the payment of the cost of any public improvement, in whole or in part, by special assessment upon abutting and nonabutting property materially benefited thereby, and, for this purpose, real estate so charged shall be classified as urban, suburban, and rural, and the assessments made in accordance with such classifications.

7. For the creation, by the board of commissioners, of districts for the purpose of regulating the location, height, area, bulk and use of buildings and premises.

8. For the creation, by the board of commissioners, of special districts for the purpose of acquiring, constructing, maintaining, operating or contracting for, any public property, work, improvement, utility or service, not for the exclusive benefit of any one municipal division, and for the payment of the costs and maintenance of such property, work, improvement, utility or service, there may be special taxes levied throughout such special districts respectively, separate and apart from the general city tax:

Provided, however, That it is the intent of this section that substantial powers be reserved to the cities, boroughs and townships situated in Allegheny County. To this end the charter shall provide for the continued existence of the said cities, boroughs and townships, as municipal divisions of the consolidated city, under their present names and forms of government, subject to the laws provided for government of municipalities of their respective forms and classes, except as provided in the charter, and with their present boundaries, provided that the City of Pittsburgh may be designated by a term other than city and may be divided into two or more municipal divisions, and that any two or more municipal divisions of the consolidated city may, with the consent of a majority of the electors voting thereon in each of such divisions at any general or special election, be united to form a single municipal division.

The said municipal divisions shall have and continue to possess the following powers.

1. The constitutional and legal capacity of municipal corporations, except as limited in the charter.

2. The power to lay and collect taxes and to incur indebtedness, subject to the limitations which are or may be imposed by law upon cities, boroughs or townships of corresponding classification, for the purpose of carrying out any lawful power of said divisions.

3. The power to acquire, own, construct, maintain, operate or contract for all kinds of public property, works, improvements, utilities or services, which shall be within the municipal division, and principally for the use and benefit of the inhabitants thereof, provided this power shall not be taken to include the construction and maintenance of through-traffic streets and bridges, tunnels, subways and appurtenances thereof, nor main or trunk lines for sewer, power and water service, running through more than one municipal division, and designated as such by the board of commissioners.

4. The power to maintain a local police force, and local fire department, with the necessary buildings, appurtenances and equipment therefor, which may be supplemental to the police force and fire department of the consolidated city.

5. The power to establish a limitation of indebtedness for the consolidated city and the municipal divisions therof, provided that the total of the indebtedness of the consolidated city and the municipal divisions thereof shall not, in the aggregate, exceed the limits of the total indebtedness allowed by the Constitution to the county and to the separate municipalities.

6. All other powers not specifically granted by the charter to the consolidate city: Provided, however, That a municipal division may surrender, by majority vote of the electors voting theron at any general or special election, any of its powers to the consolidated city, subject to the acceptance thereof by the board of commissioners.

The said charter may be amended by the Legislature, subject to ratification by a majority of the electors of the consolidated city voting theron at any general or special election: Provided, That no amendment reducing the powers of municipal divisions shall be effective unless ratified by a majority of the electors voting thereon in each of a majority of said divisions.

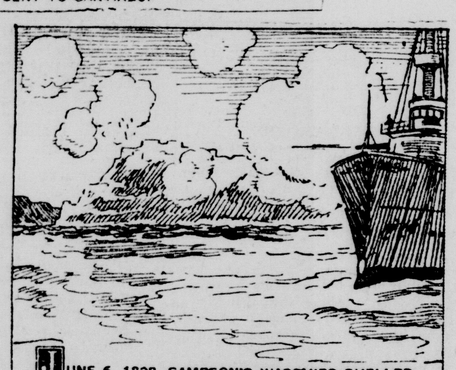
THE U.S. BATTLESHIP "TEXAS" ON PATROL. 2-25-28

WHEN IT WAS FOUND THAT THE SINKING OF THE COLLIER "MERRIMAC" HAD ONLY PARTIALLY CLOSED THE ENTRANCE OF SANTIAGO HARBOR, ADMIRAL SAMPSON CONTINUED HIS RELENTLESS BLOCKADE. HE BELIEVED THAT THE CITY AND THE SPANISH FLEET COULD BE TAKEN EASILY WITH THE AID OF LAND FORCES, AND ASKED THAT AN ARMY BE SENT TO SANTIAGO.



JUNE 6, 1898, SAMPSON'S WARSHIPS SHELLED THE SPANISH FORTS AT SANTIAGO. FEW OF THE SPANISH GUNS WERE EFFECTIVE AT LONG RANGE, AND THEIR RESPONSE WAS FEEBLE. TO SECURE A FOOTHOLD ASHORE FOR THE LANDING OF TROOPS, FIVE AMERICAN WARSHIPS ON JUNE 7 ATTACKED THE DEFENSES OF GUANTANAMO BAY, 40 MILES EAST OF SANTIAGO.

SAILORS FROM THE "ST. LOUIS" CUT THE SUBMARINE CABLE, AND, AFTER TWO DAYS' BOMBARDMENT, THE WARSHIPS SILENCED THE SPANISH GUNS, AND MADE THEIR WAY THROUGH THE ENTRANCE TO FISHERMAN'S POINT ON THE EASTERN SHORE OF THE BAY.

HERE, ON JUNE 10, THE FIRST FORCES OF THE UNITED STATES LANDED ON CUBAN SOIL. THE LANDING FORCE WAS COMPOSED OF 650 MEN OF THE 1ST MARINE BATTALION VOLUNTEERS OF NEW YORK, COMMANDED BY LIEUT.-COLONEL ROBERT HUNTINGTON.

FOOTBALL TEAM READY FOR CAMP

Gridders To Start Training On Monday

Coach Bridenbaugh Selects Twenty-Six For Annual Period Of Practice At Camp

Klee To Coach "Rookies" At Franklin Field Next Week; Gardner Has Camp Ready

By "BUGS" WALTHER

Early Monday morning the New Castle high school football camp at Muddy Creek Falls will be opened. When Coach Philip H. Bridenbaugh calls the initial practice shortly after 10 o'clock there will be 26 candidates answer the bell.

Try New Plan

A brand new plan is being tried out by the high officials this year. In other years the squad taken to camp has numbered over 35 men. This season only 26 were selected. The remaining candidates, and there are about 40 of them, will receive training at the Ben Franklin high stadium each morning next week. Coach Bridenbaugh has chosen Assistant Coach Bill Klee to take charge of the town squad. The practices at Ben Franklin high field will start at nine sharp on Monday morning, and all candidates signed up and any others wishing to try out for the team are requested to be at the stadium at the appointed hour. There will be but one practice each day at Franklin field.

The 26 chosen to make the training camp trip will report to Bridenbaugh and Gardner at Camp Ne-Ca-Hi not later than 10 o'clock Monday morning. A majority of the boys will likely wait until Monday morning, but in event it would be wise to be at the camp by 10 o'clock, because "Bridie" has called practice for that time, and no excuses are accepted.

Equipment Issued

On Friday night at Ben Franklin high stadium the 26 men to be taken to camp received their equipment from Faculty Manager Ralph Gardner and Student Manager Smith. The town squad will get their equipment Monday morning, it was stated today.

There will be two practice sessions each day at the training camp, the morning rehearsal at 10 o'clock and afternoon stanza at 2:30 o'clock. There is plenty in the way of work to be accomplished next week by the New Castle high gridders and it is hoped that the boys will return to New Castle next Saturday with a rather good knowledge of the game and the rough edges smoothed over.

Waggoner Selected

Coach Bridenbaugh announced today that he had selected Joe Waggoner, former Ben Franklin high backfield star, for the training camp to replace Charles Myler. Myler was unable to attend camp.

Assisting Coach Bridenbaugh at camp in the morning practices will be George "Gig" Thomas, former Geneva star and assistant coach at New Castle high. Klee will be on hand to assist Bridenbaugh with the afternoon workouts at camp, it was learned today.

Camp Is Ready

Faculty Manager Ralph Gardner has worked like a Trojan to get the camp in shape for the influx of gridders and the place is in tip-top shape. The boys will find every convenience for them at camp and they are assured of the right kind of treatment. In regard to the eats at camp, the writer has had several of the meals served to the gridders in former years, and they were mighty tasty. An invitation to dine at the camp this year would be most humbly appreciated by the writer. Gardner knows how to feed the youngsters and no mistaking that for boloney.

Huggins Believes Giants Will Win

NEW YORK, Aug. 25.—Miller Huggins, manager of the New York Yankees, believes that the New York Giants will win the National league pennant.

"The Giants have been playing great ball against the toughest clubs in the league," he said. "The Cardinals have beaten themselves but the Pirates have a fine chance."

Baptists Defeat Presbyterians 7-1

The First Baptist baseball team upset the dope bucket in the church league on Friday night when they hammered the league leading Central Presbyterians into submission 7 to 1 in a game at the Scotland Lane field. It was the second defeat in two days for the Central Presbyterians.

Honkonen on the hill for the Baptists pitched a sterling game, allowing but five hits and fanning six of the heavy slugging Presbyterians. Bush had the mound for the losers and was found for seven hits. Young had the only extra-base blow of the game.

The Baptists climbed on Bush in the first inning for six runs and after that it was a pitching duel. The Presbyterians kicked in with four errors. The summary:

Tilden Barred From Play In Amateur List

United States Lawn Tennis Association Rules Tilden Through As Amateur

TILDEN PLANS TO BATTLE VERDICT

By GEORGE BARRY
International News Service Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK, Aug. 25.—William T. Tilden's reign as the greatest amateur lawn tennis player of his time has come to an end. Charged with violating the amateur code of the United States Lawn Tennis Association, Tilden was tried by the executive committee of the association in a six hour session at the Hotel Vanderbilt last night and was found guilty on all counts by unanimous vote.

Sentence that he be declared ineligible to take part in amateur lawn tennis was immediately passed upon him. Yet within thirty minutes after the verdict was announced—and the hour was 2 A. M., this morning, Tilden had sent word from Boston that he would seek reinstatement at the September meeting of the association.

YOUNG FIRPO

By ED. FRITZ

Young Firpo who was called Henry before he took up the art of busting nostrils and turning perfectly well formed ears into "cauliflower-like" members of the ear family and George Perotta, the well known disciple of swat, will arrive here late tonight for their 10-round battle Monday at Jolly bowl. They will loosen up at the bowl gymnasium tomorrow and when the bell rings for the two forty-eight hours from nine tonight, the fans should see one of the most sensational battles they have ever witnessed.

Perotta is in condition. Firpo is never out of condition. George wallops much harder than Firpo but the latter is an elongated, clever boy who keeps piling up points. He won from George several weeks ago.

"I hope to stop Perotta Monday night," said Firpo while discussing the match over the telephone.

"Tell the boys I'm in shape and my sole ambition is to stretch Firpo cold on the floor," said Perotta.

Frankie Rio will have keen opposition when he steps against Monte Serko of Pittsburgh who will take the place of Jack McFarland in the semi-final. Serko has boxed every good featherweight in the Pittsburgh district. Jim Buchanan, manager of Willie Davies came here last night and personally explained that McFarland's hand, injured several days ago, is in such shape, he will not let him box Monday because it would result in a slow bout which shows that Buchanan is the right kind of a manager.

Jimmie Belmont scored a knockout Thursday night at Johnstown and will step into the ring against Walter Dickerson in a six round bout. He is a heavy puncher and Walter Dickerson is a two-fisted fighting machine.

Roy Crawford, heavyweight, who also scored a kayo at Johnstown will box Otis Williams, a big colored heavyweight from the stable of Al Zill and with Elmo Clark, the local light-heavyweight battling Al Brown, the fans here should have enough excitement to last for one night.

The first bout Monday will commence at nine p. m. fast time.

Coveleski Is Greatly Admired By His Mates, Released By Yankees

Veteran Spitball Pitcher Goes Out Of Clubhouse For Last Time With Smile

Every Player On Yankee Team Has Respect For Quiet, Unassuming Twirler

International News Service Special Correspondent

NEW YORK, Aug. 25—Stanley Coveleskie's dream of a come-back is over.

As the gray shadows settled over the Yankee stadium Thursday and a few hardy baseball perennials hung about the gates waiting for the game that couldn't be played, old man Covey sat in front of his locker, his head in his hands.

After a while he rose wearily to his feet, took a package of chewing tobacco from the locker shelf, and for a moment half fondled the dirty gray uniform that hung listlessly from its hook.

Then he closed the locker door with a bang, shoved his cap jauntily across his eyes and turned with a smile.

Goes Out Smiling

"Well," he said. "I guess I couldn't do it. Goodbye boys."

And Stanley Coveleskie left the big leagues smiling—smiling as he smiled when he came in.

For Stanley Coveleskie has ended his Yankee career. He was given his unconditional release to make room for the new blood that Miller Huggins feels is necessary to the winning of a pennant.

Tom Zachary, old and grizzled too, will move into the locker that Covey vacated.

Covey will be gone—but he won't be forgotten.

Silent, quiet, unassuming Covey; never a word of alibi; never a word of condemnation. Just a grin for fate and a stolid acceptance of fact as it came. He had hoped his arm would hold up. So had Huggins. They were wrong. The old iron arm of another year was creaky and rusty. It wouldn't do. So Covey has gone, and with him goes the best wishes of every man on the Yankee club. They liked Covey—liked him for what he was. And now they like him even more with a liking that is akin to admiration for the sportsmanship that could look fate in the eye, take the buffeting as it came and still smile when he said goodbye—forever.

JOIE SANGOR

Joie Sangor, who was one of the most promising featherweights developed in years, has dropped out of the 127-pound division. He no longer can make the weight and will have to do all his fighting in the future against lightweights.

He has already met the champion and leading challenger in this division. He knocked out Sammy Mandell in 1923 and was himself knocked out by Jimmy McLarnin in 1926.

Benefit Baseball Game Here Tonight

All-Stars and the Centennials will clash at 6:15 p. m. today at Centennial field. Hofmeister will hurl for the All-Stars and Foster will pitch for the Centennials. A portion of the receipts will be given to the Dale Marshall fund committee.

YANKEES TAKE DOUBLE DEFEAT

By LES CONKLIN
International News Service Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK, Aug. 25.—Four clubs—the Giants, the Cubs, the Reds and the Pirates—are so close to the league-leading St. Louis Cardinals that any one of them may be in first place a week from today. The Cards increased their lead over New York to a game and a half by beating the Phillies yesterday, and the Cubs grabbed third place by taking two games from Boston while the Reds were idle.

The Yankees, leading the Athletics by only three games today, find themselves in a more precarious position than at any time since springtime. The A's, who slumped a bit following their triumphant invasion of the west, have just won four straight from Cleveland.

Yanks Drop Two.

Yesterday the Yanks were twotimed by the St. Louis Browns, 5 to 2 and 3 to 1. Crowder and Blaeholder outpitched Pipgras and Heimach. The Browns, who didn't beat the Yankees last year almost until the end of the season, have broken even with the champions in eighteen contests this year.

Cochrane's single staked Rube Walberg of the Athletics to a 1 to 0 victory over Joe Shaute of the Indians.

Ernie Orsatti's homer, his third in six games, accounted for the only score as Jess Haines of St. Louis blanked the Phillies, 1 to 0. But the cards haven't made more than two runs a game since the Boston series and face tough going against the other western teams next week while the Giants take on the weaker eastern clubs.

The Pirates plastered the Giants again, 16 to 5. Burleigh Grimes turned in his fifth straight win against his former mates and his 22nd victory of the season. The Bucs nicked five New York pitchers for 19 hits.

Good pitching by Malone and Root enabled the Cubs to grab both ends of a double-header from the Braves, 4 to 1 and 4 to 3.

The Tigers got a dose of their own medicine when they were nosed out by the Red Sox, 2 to 1, after having taken four straight from the Sox by a one-run margin. Ruffing and Stoner did the throwing.

Mahoning Topples Epworth Team 14-1

The Mahoning M. E. team went on a rampage in the Church league game at the Mahoning grounds on Friday night and downed the Epworth team 14 to 1 in a slugging contest.

The Mahoning boys gathered 16 hits off Withrow and tallied one or more runs in every inning in the second and third the Mahoning teamed gained 11 runs. L. Robinson on the knoll for the Seventh warders gave but two hits and fanned seven men. The Epworth team had seven erros that didn't help a bit.

Tex Rickard Planning Lightweight Bouts To Regain Public Favor

Rickard Thinks Time Is Ripe To Shove Some Classy Lightweights Into Garden

Elimination In Heavyweight Ranks Is Interesting To General Public Now

By SID MERCER
International News Service Special Correspondent

NEW YORK, Aug. 25.—Back from a brief sojourn at Saratoga, where his proverbial luck returned to him, Tex Rickard indicates that he is going to continue the heavyweights on vacation from Madison Square Garden until a number of attractive matches in the lighter classes can provide a restful interlude and possibly develop the new headliners Tex needs in his business.

The disablement of Jack Sharkey, the setback administered to Johnny Risko by Roberto Roberti, the shackles of disputed management of Knute Hansen, Jack Delaney's involuntary withdrawal, Paulino Uzcudun's preference for the gaiety of foreign capitals to the lure of American gold, Tom Heeney's home going from which he does not return until next January, Phil Scott's decision to remain in England and Jack Dempsey's stage venture has, temporarily at least, eliminated the veteran wing of the heavyweight army from local competition.

Few Sophomores

The usual replacements promise to be heavy, now that Tunney has abdicated the throne, and there are a few sophomores who are ready to step in at any time. Rickard has them all tabbed in his book and expects to have the best of the lot on exhibition before the holidays. For fall delivery, however, several "naturals" between smaller men are looming up and Matchmaker Jess McMahon is now endeavoring to capture them.

For instance ,there is the prospect of Young Corbett, the Pacific coast's newest welterweight threat, being brought here next month or early in October to face Sergeant Sammy Baker. This match is practically closed.

Tommy Grogan, Omaha lightweight dynamiter, will be seen at the Garden in October. He was offered Joe Glick yesterday but prefers Jimmy McLarnin. Glick gave Lope Tenorio an artistic lacing last Tuesday night.

McLarnin-Grogan

A match between two deadly hitters like McLarnin and Grogan would be in triguing inasmuch as the first bulls-eye might decide it either way and it would be a distinct novelty to see two Irish lightweights brought together under such circumstances.

McLarnin, however, may be out of competition until early in the winter. He retired to his home in Vancouver with a bad hand after flattening Stanislaus Loayza in Detroit recently. Glick also seeks a match with McLarnin.

The duel between Tony Canzoneri and Andre Routis for the featherweight title is an early fall prospect.

The once popular bantamweight class seems to have fallen on evil days. Bud Taylor has abdicated his shaky throne and the class of the leading contenders is not high.

Jack Delaney may be persona non grata in New York but his services are in demand elsewhere. Joe Jacobs has received offers from Boston and Detroit for Delaney to substitute for Jack Sharkey, who has been forced to cancel matches in those cities. Boston wants him for Big Boy Peterson and Detroit for Pierre Charles.

Jacobs telephoned Delaney, who has been roughing it at Lake Winnepesaukee, New Hampshire, for several months and was told to send up some sparring partners. Delaney said he would be ready to go within two weeks.

Pitticisms

BY BILL RITT

The sports editor of this excellent paper is due to hear a lot of kicks soon. Football will be snorting its way onto the sports page.

Each fall it's possible to get killed and collegiate at the same time.

Football dates back to antedeluvian times when our ancestors wore whiskers on their elbows and kneecaps.

The players used a cocoanut for a football while the spectators dangled by their toes.

During a game the baboons present would make monkeys of themselves turning somersaults on their ears. That's how cheer leaders were invented.

The game began with the opposing gorillas biting each other on the nose to prove that there was no hard feelings.

The tilt would end when some ape swallowed the coccanut. It was a moral victory even if he died of indigestion.

Tex Rickard wants us to take the heavyweight eliminations seriously. If we did it would be fatal.

The idea should be to keep the spectators laughing themselves out of $40 each fight.

Once the fans sober up, high-priced tickets will become just so much vulgar pasteboard.

Though it was Gene Tunney who crossed the big drink in a boat, it is really Tex Rickard who is at sea.

That last crack is like a run in a pair of $15 hose. Terrible, but true.

This fellow Rickard must be awful dumb. He doesn't know the papers said he had retired.

He just keeps on doing foolish things and making money.

Tex is the only boy who could have made the war a financial success. He would have charged each German $3 for entering Belgium.

The flames of war which ravaged the world reached organized baseball in 1918 and ate away many star players. Even the big league schedules were singed and cut short, ending September 2, Labor Day.

If the war went into 1919 there was to be no big league baseball, as it had been decided to suspend all diamond activities until the enemy abroad had been defeated or had achieved a victory.

The fans of Boston had had three pennant winning teams—and the world series melons that go with them—in four seasons when the 1918 major league campaigns got under way.

George Stallings' miracle team had crashed through in 1914. Bill Carrigan had led the Red Sox to the flag in 1915 and repeated in 1916. Stallings remained as leader of the Braves, but Jack Barry, veteran and brilliant infielder, had succeeded Carrigan as boss of the Red Sox in 1917 and had failed to hold the championship Catcher Bill had willed him.

Ed. Barrow, business manager of the Red Sox, assumed the management of the team in 1918. Barrow is now business manager of the New York Yankees.

Few Boston fans, of course, had no idea that they were about to witness the last successful effort of a Boston club to win a pennant for many years to come.

The Red Sox took the lead by May first and held it practically the entire year. The Yankees produced the biggest threat when they climbed to the top for a time around July 1. Cleveland held tenaciously to second place most of the season. Chicago demanded the fourth opening in the first division up to the early days of July, but was eventually crowded out by Washington. In fact, for a time the St. Louis Browns threatened to grab fifth place away from the former champs.

In the National League Fred Mitchell, chief aide to George Stallings in the miracle days at Boston, had tried his hand at managing the Cubs in 1917 and the club had wound up fifth. Mitchell had not had time to organize his team, however, and in 1918 Mitchell came through.

Without a doubt the sagaciousness of Bill Killifer, shrewd catcher obtained from the Phillies, with his batterymate, Grover Cleveland Alexander, played a big part in the success of the team. The brilliant playing of Charley Hollocker, rookie shortstop, also helped.

The Giants, flag winners in 1917, started out well and carried the lead up to the middle of June. After the first flush—during which brief period the Phillies enjoyed a holiday in second place—the Cubs climbed into the runner-up position. The Phils faded and the Cinci Reds and Pittsburgh Pirates joined the Cubs and Giants in first division.

The middle of June found the Cubs in second place and then sliding into the lead. The margin was slight, but they hung on and won.

Boston defeated Chicago in the world series, winning four games of the six played.

Resume Selection Of Kelley Jury In Los Angeles Case

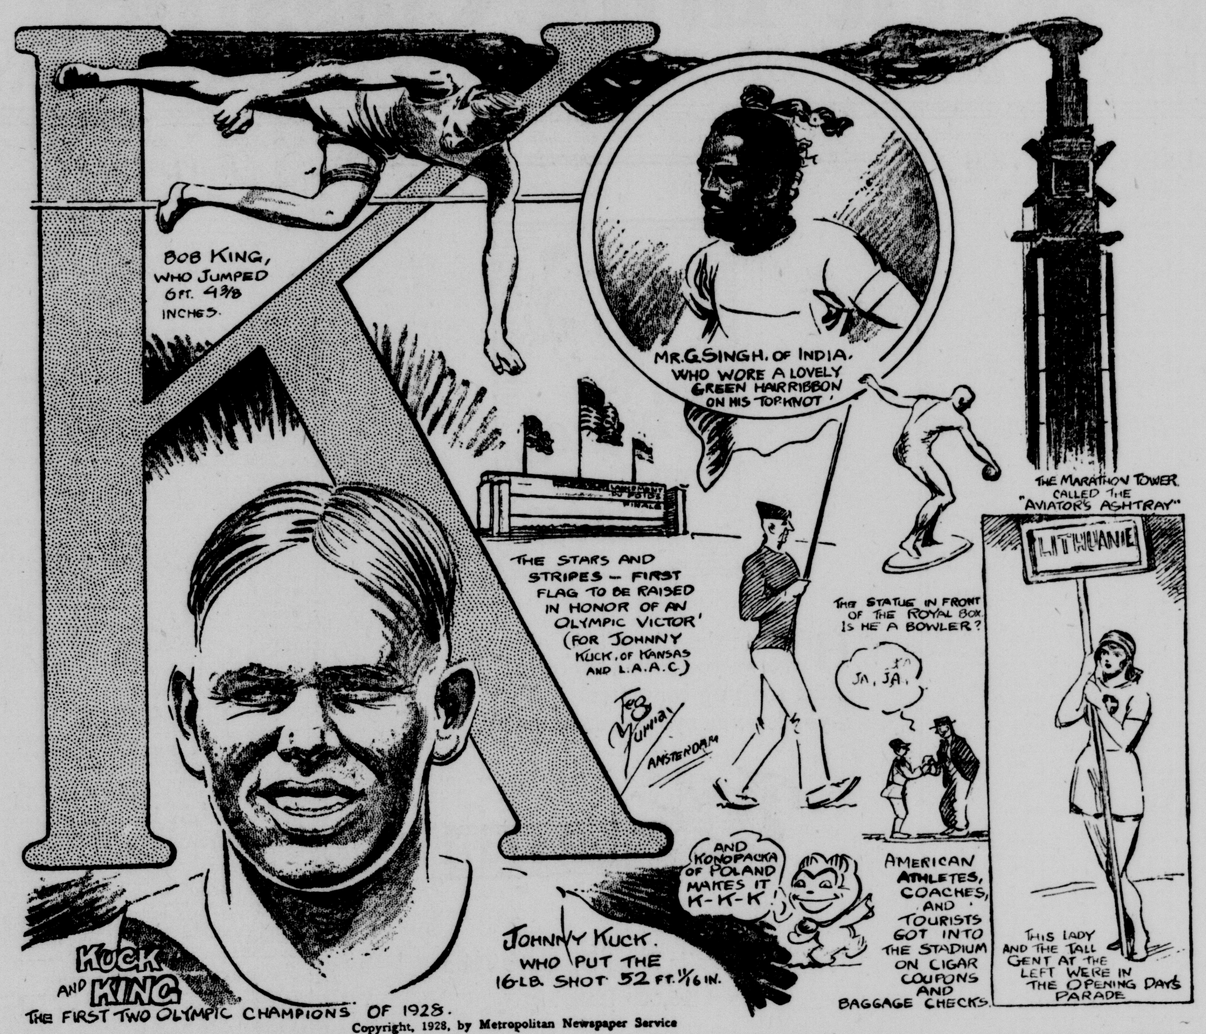
(International News Service)

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Aug. 25.—Selection of the jury to try Leo P. Kelley, charged with slaying Mrs. Myrtle Mellus, society matron, was to be continued today.

The entire jury panel escaped being dismissed yesterday following the remark of Helene M. Brandon, a tentative juror, that she believed Frank Mellus, the husband, and not Kelley, had killed Mrs. Mellus. Mrs. Brandon, who was excused from the jury, said she made such a remark "to discover the opinion of other members of the jury panel."

The attitude of a lot of young people who marry today seems to be that while they apparently accept the bonds for life they have a sneaking hope they may get a pardon later on.

SOME SKETCHES FROM AMSTERDAM BY FEG MURRAY



Copyright, 1928, by Metropolitan Newspaper Service

Memories of the games! The handsome brick stadium, with its "Aviator's Ashtray" in front and its wide vista of flat, filled-in ground with windmills and canals in the distance, and Maxfield Parrish clouds piled up overhead. The opening day's parade, with all its pomp and ceremony, its varied costumes, its solemn Olympic oath, the Prince Consort in naval uniform, the hundreds locked outside the gates struggling to get in.

The beginning of the games, and the thrill that came when "Old Glory" was the first flag to be raised in honor of an Olympic victor. And then again when the Stars and Stripes went up for another American as the second champion of 1928. Kuck and King—what a pair!

Other high spots of the week were Nurmi, Ritola and Wide, running away out in front like one beautiful rhythmic bit of machinery, Lord Burghley's startling victory over Taylor and Cuhel, the sprinting of Williams of Canada, Lowe's superb running in the half mile, Bud Houser's winning heave in the discus when he hadn't even qualified on his first two trials, the hurdling of Weightman-Smith, the South African, who broke the Olympic record in the trials and was fifth in the finals, the first and only American victory on the track when Barbuti won the 400 meters, Nurmi's bath in the first water jump of the steeplechase trials, America's two relay triumphs, and the crowd waiting breathlessly to see who was coming in the entrance to win the ninth Olympic marathon.

A most interesting nine days, well worth going to Europe for—a time of thrills, hard work, laughs and very little annoyance. Amsterdam and the Dutch people, congratulations! You put on a wonderful set of games.

FEG MURRAY SAYS

I wonder if the five circles in the Olympic flag stand for the "goose eggs" Uncle Sam got in so many track events.

Brown Travels 477 Miles On Tour Of Heavy Weight Scales

Sealer of Weights and Measures W. A. Brown has traveled 477 miles in Lawrence county in testing truck and wagon scales and has not inspected all of the scales in the county. The scales being tested are those used for weighing coal, hay and other heavy articles. There are 31 of these big scales in the city of New Castle, and more than that number in other sections of the county. In connection with the weighing of coal Sealer Brown suggests that persons getting in several loads of coal at one time insist on a weight bill for each load instead of getting the bill in a lump sum. In this city all of the coal is sold by weight, 2000 pounds to the ton, but in some of the country districts where there are no scales coal is still sold by the bushel.

County Treasurer's Office Is Rushed

County Treasurer Adda M. Smiley's office was crowded with taxpayers this forenoon, anxious to get their taxes paid before the duplicates are placed in the hands of the collector. This will be done on September 1, when five per cent will be added for collection. County taxes can still be paid at their face during next week. It is advisable to get in as early in the week as possible if you do not wish to have to stand in line, as there is always an 11th hour rush during the last two or three days.

Another good way to tell when your tires are too soft is to count the tacks and things you have picked up.

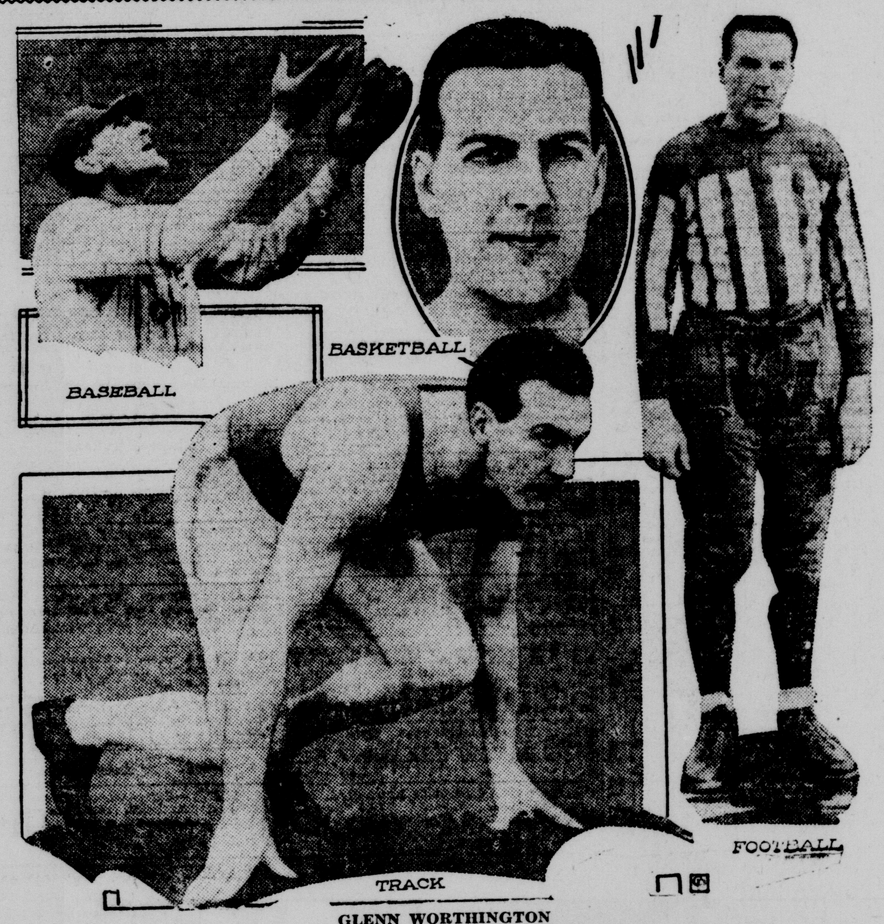
Big Leagues Loom For This Boy



GLENN WORTHINGTON

Exclusive Central Press Dispatch to New Castle News.

SALT LAKE CITY, Aug. 25.—King Baseball's out to capture the ace athlete of the Rocky Mountain conference, Glenn Worthington of the Utah Agricultural college.

Sixteen major and minor league scouts have trailed the Eureka baseball club of the Central Utah (semi-pro) league this summer in an effort to inveigle one of the most versatile athletes in the inter-mountain west into signing a contract. As yet none of them have succeeded, though the tip is out that the New York Yankees, through their representative, William C. Essick, have the inside lane in the grand scramble.

At the moment, Worthington is a first baseman, though a short while ago he was the shortstop on his club. A few weeks before he was a catcher and in this position, according to the scouts, he holds forth exceptional promise.

He is six feet two inches in height and weighs 185 pounds, and is capable of negotiating a furlong in 10 seconds in baseball uniform. During the first half of the season he played with the Nephi, Utah, club of the Utah Sanpete-Juab county league, and—believe it or not—hit .667. And now, in the Central Utah circuit, which is a pretty fast semi-pro organization, they haven't been able to get him out with any more success.

The versatility evinced by Worthington in baseball has been carried even farther in his college career.

Worthington joined the Utah Aggie camp in the fall of 1926 and immediately distinguished himself on the frosh football team, even though he had never seen a football in his high school days.

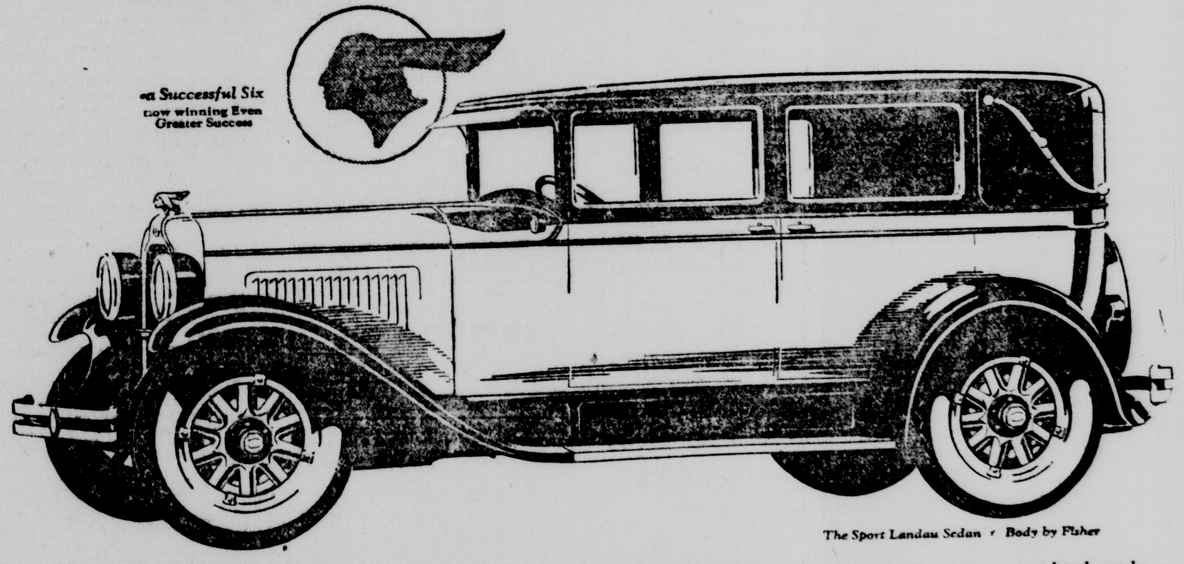
When basketball time came around the U. A. C. squad found itself in possession of a fine center in Glenn, fast as the winds that sweep over the native Wasatch hills. Worothington was all-conference center, though it was his first season.

In football, the fleet and powerful Utahan developed rapidly under the tutelage of Coach E. L. "Dick" Romney, and with two years' varsity experience behind the boy, Romney figures to uncover a new grid sensation this fall in Worthington. The big star's 185 pounds of 10-second brawn and sinew provide the Aggies' coach with plenty of reasons. The Utah Aggies have also found Worthington's speed and power one of the principal factors in their remarkable success in winning the conference track and field championships three times in the last four years. Worthington, in that time, has never been beaten in the high hurdles, his specialty, and has finished worse than second in the low hurdles only once. He has been anchor man on three good relay teams.

The western division of the Rocky Mountain conference sponsors no school baseball, but in intra-mural and inter-fraternity series Worthington did his stuff.

With professional baseball crying frantically for big fellows with speed and power who can catch, it is no wonder that the scouts have set upon capturing this prize beauty.

ENRICHED in Color ++ Enhanced in Style and Offering Even Greater Performance



The Sport Landau Sedan r Body by Fisher

Beautiful as the Pontiac Six has been in the past—great as its performance has proved in the hands of owners—

—today's Pontiac Six is even more beautiful, even more thrilling to drive! For, in keeping with Oakland's policy of progressive engineering practice, this lowest-priced General Motors' Six has been enriched in color, enhanced in style and equipped for even finer performance.

To the beauty and style of long, low bodies by Fisher, Oakland has added the swagger touch of smaller, smarter wheels and larger tires, while new and harmonious combinations of Duco colors have been created. Mechanical advancements result in greater speed and greater power than Pontiac ever offered before. And along with its more stirring response to the throttle, it continues to provide the stamina and long life for which it is famous.

Until you have seen and driven it you cannot realize what style, what color and what performance today's Pontiac Six affords—for here are beauty and snap you never dreamed you could buy for as little as $745!

2-Door Sedan, $745; Coupe, $745; Sport Roadster, $745; Phaeton, $775; Cabriolet, $795; 4-Door Sedan, $825; Sport Landau Sedan, $875. Oakland All-American Six, $1045 to $1265. All prices at factory. N. Y. STOCKS

By W. S. COUSINS
International News Service Financial Editor

NEW YORK, Aug. 25.—Friday's brilliant advance in the motor and industrial stocks was carried into the short session of the market today and prices of the market favorites started the day from 1 to 5 points higher. Buying orders flowed to the financial district in good volume as speculative experts heralded the approach of a "new bull movement."

A favorable setting for the new advance was furnished by the week-end financial and business reviews of the banks and mercantile agencies, which forecasted a wide expansion in American business this year and increasing profits for the corporations.

Bullish forces were encouraged by the aggressive leadership furnished by General Motors. The stock was taken in large blocks of from 10,000 to 15,000 shares at the highest prices on the recovery and representing a gain of nearly 20 points from the low of last week. Buying of Chrysler was stimulated by the advance notices of the new Dodge models, which are expected to have a favorable public appeal. Packard, Hupp, and Studebaker failed to gain, thought the stocks were taken in good volume.

Allied Chemical joined the 200-club when that stock jumped 7 points to 204 in active trading in the first period. Greene Cananea took the spotlight from American Smelting as the leader of the high-priced coppers, advancing about 7 points No. 120. Anaconda sold above 72 and International Nickel was forced up 2 points in active .....

WEEKLY REVIEW OF NEW YORK MARKET

By W. S. COUSINS
International News Service Financial Editor

NEW YORK, Aug. 25.—The money market maintained its reputation this week as the unfailing conundrum of the financial situation. In a week marked by broad bullish movements over a wide range of industrial stocks, increasing public participation and the return of 3,000,000 shares sessions, the volume of collateral loans (brokers' loans) decreased $22,000,000 instead of increasing anywhere from $100,000,000 to $150,000,00 as had been expected. Call money was in good supply all the week, and the rate ruled around 7 per cent.

Bonds Pile Up

The shrinkage in collateral loans is explained either by the heavy distribution of bonds which had been piling up on the shelves of the investment houses for the last six weeks, or the sandwiching of speculative stocks to the "strong hands" in Wall Street and elsewhere and a consequent cutting down of the volume of weak marginal holdings. There can be no doubt of the good progress that has been made this week in distributing a "stale" bind accumulation among institutional and individual investors, in the process of which millions of dollars have been released from the loan account.

The motor stocks, coppers and high-priced mercantile and specialty shares were the leaders in a vigorous forward movement of prices, which gained in momentum near the week-end as powerful buying waves swept over the market. Chrysler finally pushed forward to 10 in recognition of the larger position to be occupied by the corporation in the motor-car manufacturing field, and the stock as a popular speculative medium on the New York Stock Exchange. Brilliant forward movements were also conducted by General Motors, Nash, Studebaker, Packard, Hupp, and other well known motor stocks.

Statements Favorable

Almost uniformly favorable reports and statements were issued this week by the representative corporations operating in the steel, motor car, building construction, copper and other industries. There has been a genuine revival of trade, necessitating larger production of raw and manufactured goods, and a wider distribution of commodities all over the country. One result of this wider distribution is the large increase of freight loadings on the railroads, always an important financial weather-vane.

The drop in brokers' loans was greeted enthusiastically in Wall Street and a badly trapped short interest in the motor and steel stocks at the opening of Friday's session was compelled to squirm uncomfortably to extricate itself from the rap. Chrysler Motor, the mercantile stocks and United States Steel gave an enthusiastic demonstration of their strength as the "battle of the millions" among powerful bulls and bears continued at a feverish pitch.

Bears Retreat

As usual, the bears retreated in disorder from the field, and the big financial district now has an entirely new crop of rumors and reports of gigantic losses by speculative bears who have been attempting unsuccessfully to block the forward swing of prices. It is amply demonstrated that a high money rate cannot be made an effective permanent barrier to a bull movement, in stocks when corporation earnings and a country-wide speculative fever propels stock values higher and higher.

New advances of five to 20 points were recorded in a score or more of the well known industrial shares, including United States Steel Common, American Can, American Smelting, Sears Roebuck, Montgomery Ward, National Cash Register, Continental Can, Union Car and Carb, Texas Gulf Sulphur, etc. Movements in the commodities and futures markets were generally narrow and speculative interest comparatively light. The foreign exchange were irregular and the bond market inactive in the early sessions of the week.

Near $500 In Fund For Deaf And Blind Boy

The fund for Dale Marshall, deaf and blind boy of the city, who cannot have an operation because of lack of money, has totaled up to nearly $500. It is expected that before The News office closes this evening that that amount will be reached. At noon today, the total amount sent into the fund conducted by The News was $488.

The largest single donation that has come into The News office for the blind boy's fund since the last publication of the donations was a ten dollar bill which was attached to a slip of paper and the mere signature of "A Friend," was enclosed.

Donations to the fund for the boy have been coming from every imaginable source and a keen interest in the lad seems to be taken throughout the entire county. Organizations have taken up the cause and various business enterprises in the city are giving money.

SEVENTH WARD NEWS

Pennsy Athletes To Attend Meet

Five Pennsy Employes At Pitcairn Today For Meet; Other News Of Seventh Ward

Five Pennsy employes left this morning to run in track and field elimination meet of the A. & E. division of the Pennsylvania railroad at Pitcairn athletic field at Pitcairn, Pa., accompanied by the 36-piece Pennsy band, directed by H. M. Culbertson, West Cherry street.

The athletes, John Shields, Frank Palumbo, Jess Huff Jr., Howard Culbertson and S. S. Domenick, have been training at the Ben Franklin athletic field for the past week, through the courtesy of Ralph Gardner of the Senior high school, and are in very good condition for the race. There will be about 400 athletes at the meet and competition will be very strong. If the team should place in this meet they will go to the final meet of the Pennsylvania railroad athletes at Altoona September 22.

H. S. Nancarrow, master mechanic of the E. & A. division, predicts victory for the local track team and has done everything possible to get them in shape for the meet.

John Shields, captain of the relay team, has placed in the meets for the past three years, running the 100-yard dash, and the boys are depending upon Johnnie to do his very best this year.

The meet today includes trials for all the field and track events and also baseball games between the different teams of the division.

There was a special coach for the athletes and band attached to the Pittsburgh train that leaves at 7:35 a. m. A number of people from the ward also went down to see the meet on the same train.

TRANSFERRED TO NO. 7

Walter McAnaney of fire department number 3 has been transferred to number 7 and will fill the vacancy made by the resignation of Ben Hartland, who is taking up his former duties as bricklayer.

LEFT FOR BOSTON

Eugene Wray of West Madison avenue left Thursday for a motor trip to the New England states by way of Washington and Gettysburg. He will be gone about 10 days or two weeks, depending upon the length of time spent in Boston, Mass., where he intends to stop for at least a few days. The trip home will be made by way of New York City. Mr. Wray will be accompanied on the trip by Joe Pearson of East Moody avenue.

The Way OF THE World

POINCARE

Raymond Poincare, at the head of the French government, is an inspiration—or should be—to all of us lazy ones. This able Frenchman is 68 years old but he works 12 hours a day, seven days a week and seems to thrive on it. He plays no golf and takes no regular exercise. He gets up at six and spends a couple of hours at his desk at home before he goes to his office. He doesn't eat much and he doesn't drink.

Few get as far—half as far—as this man does. Perhaps there is some connection between Poincare's place in the world and his 6 o'clock rising, his home work and his frugal eating and drinking.

STOPPING CRIME

The chances of being robbed are 36 times greater in a large American city than in London. Crime is said to cost the United States 13 billion dollars a year. An ex-burglar, talking to a newspaper man, says: "All crime research work is done by persons who never committed crimes." He then goes on to say that lax restrictions in the sale and carrying of firearms is one of the outstanding causes of the amount of crime in America. A tough youngster can get a gun almost as easily as he can buy a toothbrush in the corner drug store. England, France and other European countries have pretty well put gun-carrying out of business by laws that are severe.

It wouldn't be a bad idea for crime students to listen carefully to some more ex-burglars.

NECESSITY

People in the United States are pretty generally agreed that the war had scant results as far as good is concerned. It seems now an outrageous and insane outbreak. The world is no better for it—except industrially better. There have been some rewards from the war in the way of manufacturing processes and stimulation of business. Before the conflict we depended on Germany and German chemists for dye stuffs. Necessity made our scientists get busy. Today we are independent in ways in which we were never independent before.

NO RACE MONOPOLY

Those who believe that about all the good there is must come out of the minds and hearts and activities of light-skinned people get a setback in the Olympic games. The Nordics are not supreme. The theory so ably advocated not long ago that the whites are the sole hope of the world seems bound to be pretty well exploded. Algerians, Japanese and others win races and other physical contests. And dark skinned people produce poetry and music.

No race has a monopoly on the production of culture and culture's fruit.

Daredevil Injured; Cancels At Idora

Oscar Babcock, the world-famous daredevil, has experienced another serious accident which makes it necessary for him to cancel his engagement at Idora Park in Youngstown. Mr. Babcock was injured two years ago and it is only recently that he has returned to giving public performances of his thrilling spectacle. On Wednesday evening he had a fall which resulted in a broken bone in his shoulder and will doubtless permanently disable him for some time. The Idora Park management has given wide publicity to this daring spectacle and they announce that many other outstanding features have been arranged for the Labor Day program, although they regret that this accident will make Oscar Babcock's appearance impossible.

Council To Question Bus Company

Officials of the Pittsburgh-Cleveland auto bus line will be asked by officials of the city of New Castle why busses do not take on or discharge passengers here, as the result of Councilman Burns' action taken when solons met in city hall today.

He made a motion to that effect and it was seconded by his colleague, D. O. Davies

"They use a skip-stop system here," said Davies in replying to Councilman Burns.

City Solicitor White will pen the communication to the bus company heads.

Weekly Letter

Monday August 27, 1928, 12:15-1:30 p. m., The Castleton, Daylight Savings Time.

Fellow Rotarion:

In the measurement of distance nowadays, time is the only thing considered. Cleveland is two or three hours away to you; to Bob Love or Roy Bradford it is only 45 minutes away. It is now but 18 hours from San Francisco to New York. And in a few years, a week-end jaunt to Europe may be ordinary travelling.

That we may have the real high-up on all this, we will have Major Billy Grey and Captain Ronald Smith speak on

"Air Transportation"

Maybe you can bum a ride to New York some afternoon with them instead of going out to the golf links. These gentlemen are intensely interesting speakers and we expect a large attendance, so please notify the secretary of the number of guests you expect to bring with you. Maybe they can tell Bill Hugus and his committee how to get an air mail stop in New Castle.

Herman Hess attended Rotary in Washington, D. C., Jim Evans at Clearfield. Lou Round in Zellenople.

SERVEL Electric Refrigeration

6 reasons why you will want the new Servel

1. Greater beauty and simplicity in design—inside and out.
2. Better construction and finish. Heavy pressed "Armco" steel with one-piece lining of porcelain.
3. Simpler, sturdier mechanical equipment—quiet, foolproof and more economical to run.
4. The coldest refrigerant—hence the most efficient—in household use.
5. Greater freezing capacity—more ice trays—more cubes—easier to handle—quick to freeze.
6. Better temperature control—entirely automatic. No delicate devices to get out of order.

You can buy Servel on easy terms

Any of the Servel models, as well as the Servel installation in your own refrigerator, can be purchased for a moderate first payment and the balance spread over a convenient term of months. Ask for details.

Finish Remodeling Old Campus Houses

Will Be New Dorms For Westminster; New Wilmington News

NEW WILMINGTON, Aug. 25.—Painting and remodeling work having been almost finished, the two houses moved to new locations on Maple street are now ready to be furnished as girls' dormitories for the college coeds. These two freshman women's houses are now in situations immediately adjacent to the Robertson house, another girls' dormitory, which fact places the three college buildings together on the northeast side of the campus.

After being a hardware merchant in the college town for 32 years, J. M. Houston has sold his business to Howard C. Temple of Aliquippa. Success has followed Mr. Houston along the years of his business career and his establishment is one of the oldest in the town. Mr. Temple will take full charge of the store in the near future.

Dr. and Mrs. Harold Black were in town for a few hours yesterday. Mr. Black is the new head of the mathematics department in the college.

Professor Alan B. Davis left yesterday by automobile for Chicago on a short business trip.

George Graham is visiting Mr. and Mrs. Robert A. Houston here.

Miss Corinne Mercer left for Atlantic City, N. J., where she will spend a week of her summer vacation period.

Joe Dombrowski and Joe Furno, Westminster football stars, are now working in town to get "hardened" before the opening of training camp.

Rev. Landis Returns From Vacation Trip

Rev. George M. Landis, pastor of the First Baptist church of this city, and his family returned Friday evening from a vacation trip to the home of the former's parents at Honey Grove, Pa.

Rev. Landis will preach Sunday morning and evening in his pulpit. At the morning service he will preach on the theme "A Psalm of Three Words" and in the evening at 7:45 his sermon subject will be "Eliminating the Middle Man."
